The plowman is an artist. From a seat above the moldboards, he drives a paint brush across God's earthly canvas. There is something inherently good about being at the beginning of the food chain and standing in the place from which the nation draws its power. It matters not if the farmer uses modern powerful tractors or a six-mule team, life starts here. Politics, religion, science, and industry all have their roots in the smell of earthworms and hand-crafted furrows.

The Plain farmer in the photo above provides this spring plowing scene along Amsterdam Road just off Voganville Road located northwest of New Holland in Lancaster County. The young man had a nice long field to plow — about 16 corn rows to the acre, he said. And the young pair of under 3-year-olds in the six-mule team were a little green and needed extra rest at the turn of the row. But the late afternoon sun Wednesday afternoon at about 4 p.m. provided a good day for plowing and a nice texture to the photographic scene. The air was strongly nippy, but the faith and hope of the soon-coming spring was about all any farmer or cameraman could wish for. Photo by Everett Newswanger, managing editor.

Growers Should Beware Of Possible Fowl Pox Challenges In Flocks

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Poultry fowl pox treatment research is showing some positive results, according to a leading researcher. But growers still need to watch their flocks closely for the disease.

Dr. Andre F. Ziegler, DVM, MPVM with the University of Pennsylvania New Bolton Center, spoke to more than 30 producers and agri-industry representatives at the Poultry Management and Health Seminar Monday afternoon at Kreider's Restaurant.

Ziegler, resident of avian medicine and pathology of the Laboratory of Avian Medicine and Pathology at New Bolton, is a second year resident at the laboratory. He provided an avian poxvirus overview.

The virus can affect many different species of birds, Ziegler said, and can be slow-spreading. It can also reappear in flocks that have not experienced challenges of the virus in some time.

There are two forms of the pox.

Nose To Nose With A Horse

The open house program on Pennsylvania horse farms is an opportunity to come nose to nose with a horse. You will be able to learn about the many opportunities to become involved with horses close to home. In the photo, unidentified visitors tour Foal's Paradise Farm in Ephrata. See story page A32.

ADC Delegates Approve Land O'Lakes Merger

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Atlantic Dairy Cooperative members on Thursday approved a plan of merger with Land O'Lakes, setting in motion a formal merger of the two cooperatives effective April 1.

The vote by Atlantic members took place at a special meeting of the cooperative's delegates held in Lancaster.

Members of both cooperatives needed to approve the plan for the merger to go forward. Land O'Lakes members voted in favor of the proposal Feb. 20 at the conclusion of their 76th annual meeting.

"This merger is a positive move for Atlantic members," Robert M. Dever, Atlantic's chief executive officer, said.

"Within this larger system, we can provide greater long-term value and returns to our members through expanded product manufacturing, association with a branded, value-added market and access to a wider range of agricultural programs, products and expertise."

"We are on the eve of an historic moment," said John E. Gherty, president and chief executive officer of Land O'Lakes.

Delmarva Broiler

MARCH 12, 1997

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was seasonally light and unaggressive. Seller offerings were readily available and were slow in clearing. Live supplies were at least moderate; weights varied, and were mostly desirable to heavy. Processing schedules were moderate to heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 52 to 66 cents. Trade sentiment remained weak and unsettled. In the parts complex, wings were adequate and in best balance. Other items were generally noted as fully adequate or more than sufficient to handle the limited buying interest.

The Building you want.
The Lease you need.

Whether your new farm or commercial building is of pole, timber column, stud, steel or block construction; choose Telmark lease financing.

Telmark has been leasing equipment for over 30 years. Did you know that we've been leasing new buildings for that long too? Consider the features:

- Tax deductibility and accelerated write-offs: Lease payments are income tax deductible over the term of the lease compared to 20-year depreciation of farm buildings and 39-year depreciation of commercial buildings. Could reduce tax liability this year.
- Low upfront costs: Beginning costs may be as little as one monthly lease payment.
- Flexible lease term: Building lease terms start aggressively at five years but may be as long as ten, twelve, or fifteen years.
- Customized payment schedules: Lease payment schedules match your cash flow. Payment options include monthly, quarterly, annually, as well as, skip or specially designed seasonal payments.

National Grain Market

ST. JOSEPH, MO
MARCH 12, 1997

Corn and soybean bids continued to decline sharply and wheat bids followed the trend. Additional corrections were made in corn and bean bids due to recent sharp gains. Profit taking and a pickup in farmer selling, weighed on bids. Wheat bids were pressured by the sharp drops and favorable weather in the Southeast. Good export demand so far this week, especially for corn, limited some of the weakness. Wheat 1 to 5 cents lower. Corn 9 to 13 cents lower. Sorghum 18 to 20 cents lower. Soybeans 20 to 30 cents lower. U.S. Export Sales: Purchaser Commodity Tonnage Del date Taiwan Corn 108,000 May/Jun Totals: Corn 108,000 tonnes. ## The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

MARCH 17-23, 1997

PALM SUNDAY, MARCH 23.

THE "KING," THEN SPRING . . .

After you've finished celebrating St. Patrick's Day on March 17, it's time to listen to a little Nat "King" Cole (born March 17, 1919). On March 20, welcome springtime before your morning coffee break — the vernal equinox arrives at 8:55 A.M., EST. With the Full Worm Moon on March 23, those early worm castings are luring the first robins our way. If you haven't got your seeds ordered, time's a-wasting! The swallows are returning to San Juan Capistrano.

Plan the whole year in the spring. – Chinese proverb

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ If you're trying to quit smoking, suck on a bit of fresh ginger root or a clove.

SPRING ROLLS

6 scallions, chopped
1 red bell pepper, seeded and chopped
2 cups sliced mushrooms
1 cup bean sprouts
2 tablespoons extra virgin olive oil
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1/8 teaspoon ground ginger
phyllo pastry (about 12 sheets)
melted butter to brush on

Sauté vegetables in olive oil until cooked. Add soy sauce and ginger and let cool. Preheat oven to 400° F. Fold a sheet of phyllo in half, lengthwise, add some of the vegetables, and roll up like an eggroll, turning a half-inch of the edges inward as you roll. Brush with butter and place on baking sheet. Repeat to use all ingredients. Bake about 15 minutes, then turn rolls over and bake for another 15 minutes. Serve hot.

Makes about 12 rolls.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

St. Joseph's Day (Mar. 19) clear, so follows a fertile year.

Rain on St. Benoit's Day (Mar. 21) means rain for forty days.

Special Offer. Handy chart full of interesting weather proverbs. Send $3 to Weather Chart, Dept. UF, The Old Farmer's Almanac, Box 520, Dublin, NH 03444

SIMPLE PROCEDURE: the aerator works directly into the bed of material, forming its own windrow. Windrows can be formed from piles of nearly any size. Alleyways are not required when using the Brown aerator, so there is a great reduction in space requirements. The aerator's reverse rotation works the material from the bottom up and to the side, assuring complete mixing and agitation. LOW MAINTENANCE: the aerator is a simple design, the principle as a material mover has been proven with over 30 years experience in practical application. The aerator is hydraulically driven and equipped with patented wearplates or paddles, both of which are easily replaced.

OPINION

Growing Better, Together

Whether producing leaner cuts of meat, protecting the environment or providing consumer education, American agriculture is more responsive than ever to the desires of the consumer. National Agriculture Week, March 16-22, 1997, will celebrate this consumer focus with the theme "Growing Better Everyday ... Together."

"Today more Americans are emphasizing a healthy lifestyle and are concerned about protecting the environment," says Ron Vavrina, chairman of the Agriculture Council of America, Ag Day coordinator. "American agriculture is focused on meeting those consumer desires in a myriad of ways."

As America has become more health conscious, farmers and ranchers are producing meat lower in fat and cholesterol. For example, today's hogs are bred to be 50 percent leaner than those of 20 years ago. In fact, a barbecued pork loin sandwich has just 8 fat grams compared with 22 fat grams in a tuna salad sandwich. In the same way, leaner cuts of beef, with 27% less fat than 20 years ago, are standard offerings in today's retail meat case.

Of course, fruits and vegetables are always associated with a healthy lifestyle and for good reason. Research and advancements in biotechnology are now in the marketplace in the form of tastier fruits and vegetables that stay fresh longer and are not damaged by insects.

Among those consumers most associated with healthy eating, we find tofu to be a standard part of their diet. Tofu is a soybean product that has been shown to reduce the risk of some cancer and heart disease.

The concern for the environment that is so strong throughout America is equally reflected in the agricultural sector. Just as urban families recycle glass, newspapers and aluminum cans, farmers are recycling chemical containers, feed bags and food by-products.

More and more, city waste is finding its way to the farms as useful products instead of ending up in landfills. For example, agricultural researchers are testing the benefits of spreading pelleted waste paper on farm ground to act as an artificial mulch to reduce wind and water erosion.

What's more, numerous agricultural associations and organizations have created programs and seminars to deal with environmental needs in areas such as air quality, water quality and soil erosion.

Today consumer desires are coming together with agriculture's desire to satisfy them. Certainly American agriculture is "Growing Better Everyday ... Together."

To Tighten Up Biosecurity

Avian Influenza (A.I.) virus is still circulating around poultry farms.

For those who can remember 1983, there are a lot of similarities between the winter of 1997 and 1983. Mild, foggy weather with the first case of A.I. in late winter.

Positive blood samples have been in found in both commercial and backyard flocks. Based on this history, every poultry farmer should increase and tighten up his biosecurity.

According to Dr. David Kradel, Pennsylvania Poultry Federation, this is a virus that is easy to control through a good biosecurity program. If everyone is practicing good biosecurity, there is no reason for this virus to spread in commercial poultry flocks.

Let's stop this virus in its tracks before it causes large loses.

The recent cases of AI are reason for serious concern. The future will be determined by the level of biosecurity each farmer institutes.

Do not take chances. For more information on biosecurity, contact your service person or the Lancaster County Cooperative Extension office at (717) 394-6851.

To Understand Early Milker Detachment

According to Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County dairy extension agent, one of the newer trends in milking cows is early detachment of milker units.

There can be less stress on the teat end, less liner slippage, fewer teat impacts, less transfer of infectious organisms into the teat, reduced infection rates, greater parlor flow of cows, and improved labor efficiency.

The goal still is to get the cows milked out rapidly, gently, and fairly completely. The results can be variable from farm to farm and from cow to cow.

To ensure the greatest success from this technique, do a good job preparing the udder and stimulating milk letdown. Also, align the units properly for uniform, rapid, and complete milkout and SCC levels and infection rates should be fairly low.

To accomplish early detachment, some farmers are adjusting their automatic take-off settings from 0.7-pound flow and a 13-second delay to a 2-pound flow rate and a 3-second delay.

To Evaluate Topdressing Winter Grains

Robert Anderson, Lancaster County agronomy agent, reminds us that winter grain crops which are starting to grow may be in need of additional nitrogen fertilizer.

When additional nitrogen is needed, best response is obtained when applied prior to growth stage 6.

Stage 6 is when the first node becomes visible. The rate of nitrogen to apply is governed by several factors, including yield potential and the field's fertilizer and manure history.

When annual applications of livestock or poultry manure are applied to the field or a legume crop was grown last year in the field, little or no benefit can be expected by adding additional nitrogen.

Winter barley will lodge badly if high rates of nitrogen are applied or if the soil contains high amounts of residual nitrogen.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

HOW TO 'HANG IN THERE'
March 16, 1997

Background Scripture:
2 Thessalonians 1
Devotional Reading:
1 Timothy 1:1-8

Being a follower of Jesus Christ in Thessalonika was not for sissies or the faint-hearted. Many of the local citizens regarded these Christians as heretics and heaped abuse, both verbal and physical, upon them. The lamp of the gospel did not go out there, but if flickered violently.

Yet, despite all this conflict, Paul could write and commend the Thessalonians "because your faith is growing, and the love of every one of your for one another is increasing" (1:3). Paul and his associates gave thanks to God for the steadfastness of the Thessalonian Christians in the face of "all your persecutions and the afflications which you are enduring" (1:4).

So far, the church at Thessalonika was hanging in there, as we say today. But how long could they continue to hold on and still grow in faith and love? At the point he writes this letter, there is no end in sight to the suffering they are enduring. Paul can't send them an army or police detachment to protect them. He can't call on the government to protect his Thessalonian friends. There seems to be nothing he can do to help them.

MAKE YOU WORTHY

But Paul knows there is something that can be done and he does it: he prays "that our God may make you worthy of his call and may fulfill every good resolve and work of faith by his power, so that the name of the Lord Jesus may be glorified in you ..." (1:11).

The word "worthy" here could be a stumbling block, for in the rest of his epistles Paul tells us we cannot be worthy of God's grace. But I think that the worthiness he is praying for the Thessalonians is not to be equal to the grace of God, but up to the challenge that confronts them.

Actually, these words of Paul can be helpful to us when we seem uncertain how to pray for someone. We're currently praying for a friend who was laid off from his position and has been searching for a new job for too many months. When we pray for him, we do not tell God what to do about our friend, but we ask that he may be equal to the challenge that confronts him and fulfill the potential God has placed within him.

GLORIFIED IN US

When, like the Christians at Thessalonika, we are confronted by affliction, it is natural that we ask God to let this cup pass from us. But at its highest level, our prayer must be to help us to be equal to the challenge "so that the name of our Lord Jesus may be glorified in you, and you in him, according to the grace of our God and the Lord Jesus Christ" (1:12). Instead of asking for the easiest and fastest way out of our affliction, let us ask that whatever God sends the name of Jesus may be glorified in us.

That's a very tall order, I know. In my life God has permitted me to escape some of my affliction, while others I have had to see through to the very end. Given a choice, of course, I would prefer the former option. But the latter is sometimes inescapable and it is in these that we have the greatest opportunity to be his faithful disciples — to witness to the world what can happen when we let him shine through us. There is no better way to witness for Jesus Christ than to let him shine through us when we walk in a dark place that we cannot avoid.

So, what is the prescription for 'hanging in there' when we are faced with a rock and a hard place? First, pray that God will help you to be up to the challenge — and you will be. Second, ask him to let Christ shine through your handling of that challenge. More than that we cannot or need not ask.

Ken and Marilyn Umble of Atglen, PA have been working with Nutrena Feeds since October 1995 and have benefited from the technology of Nutrena's Focus program.

"Our RHA is 22,900 and climbing. Currently we are averaging 81 lbs/cow on 2X milking and we are still increasing. When we started with Nutrena we needed more production at a better cost and that is exactly what we got. We have seen body condition improve and we know this is helping. Our Territory Manager, Robert Davis, provides us with prompt and dependable service and always follows through. In addition to the success with our cows, we have been very pleased with our calves on the Herd Builder program. We have cut weaning time down from eight to four weeks and the calves are healthy."

Growers Should Beware Of Possible Fowl Pox Challenges In Flocks

One, a "dry" pox, shows up as raised, dark skin lesions on the comb or wattles. There is also a "wet" form of the pox, which show up as caseous (cheesy), diphtheric lesions of the upper trachea and oral cavity of the birds.

Early dry pox lesions can show up as blisters, which can rupture. Soon dark, crusty material forms on the lesions. The wet pox lesions show up as caseous exudate, mostly on the forward portions of the trachea when the birds are examined.

The disease affects primarily mature birds and is rare in breeders, pullets, or broilers, said Ziegler. It is generally seen in the warmer summer months but yearround evidence of the disease in houses has been seen.

Dr. Andre F. Ziegler

"We are seeing more of this virus in Pennsylvania," Ziegler told those at the meeting. In January of 1996, the lab had seen more than in the past 12-month period — four cases in all. The virus can have regional variations in terms of strain, and varies for whatever reasons.

"Here in Pennsylvania we're seeing more than we usually do, I think," said Ziegler.

Between Sept. 1995-Sept. 1996, there were 21 cases that were reported to the Pennsylvania Diagnostic Laboratories, including wet and dry cases. Of the 21, 18 were from commercial egg layers (11 dry, 5 wet, and 2 both).

The Midwest and Pacific Northwest see more of the less- common wet pox, and the Midwest in general sees more pox cases, for which research still doesn't have a reason.

Average mortality for the birds that exhibit the wet variety of the virus averages 5-10 percent, and some growers have seen greater than 30 percent.

Layers are affected by the pox from 29-112 weeks of age, and the average is 50.1 weeks, according to Ziegler. Thirty-to 35 weeks of age is most common, he said.

The course of the infection can last from 4 weeks to six months in the house. Production drops range from 1.5-2 percent (the lab has seen it go as high as 8 percent), and morbidity is sometimes greater than 15 percent (ranges from 15-20 percent).

There is a small increase in mortality, but not nearly as bad in the Midwest, which has been having extensive pox challenges.

The lab at New Bolton has been working on two different pox treatment projects. One of them examines the pox virus from a field strain and looking at why there are varieties of protection. Is it a "take" problem and does it have to do with how well the vaccine is administered (quality of injection site, etc.)? They are looking into two isolates, including comb and trachea lesions, and using different pools of virus. They are looking at company vaccine protocols and those results.

One finding: combination comb and trachea virus vaccines provided protection against tracheal lesions, but all vaccine protocols seemed to protect against tracheal lesions. More results of the vaccine combinations are pending.

The study also looked intently at the association between poor "takes" or how the needle vaccine was administered and poor protection. Could protection have something to do with bird breed types? More work is needed.

In the second study, continuing into the spring this year, the lab is evaluating three different immunity vaccination protocols using commercially available fowl pox and field virus with three different breeds. Researchers are looking at the results of the protocols in pullets and layers. Vaccines include commercially available pox, a field strain, and a USDA strain.

There were a total of 21 groups of pullets and layers.

Some early conclusions: all breeds demonstrated protection with field virus used as vaccination and challenge. But all commercially available vaccines are very similar, even if they are made by different companies.

Some of the challenges experiences by Midwest growers could be caused by simple lack of proper biosecurity measures, not just from the virus. Sanitary conditions could preclude their ability to rid the disease from flocks.

A.I. Update

Dr. David Kradel, coordinator of food safety activities with the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation, reminded the growers that concerns of biosecurity and keeping an eye on the latest developments regarding avian influenza (A.I.) should be of utmost concern.

A layer flock was discovered having a nonpathogenic form of A.I. and was depopulated immediately last month. The fear is that this could be a repeat of the situation of the mid-1980s when a nonpathogenic virus turned pathogenic and A.I. decimated millions of birds in the state.

Another flock is undergoing testing for evidence of the nonpathogenic strain and has experienced some mortality. Some smaller live bird flocks have experienced 100 mortality from the "nonpathogenic" virus. About four growers have suffered substantial losses already, many guinea fowl.

Biosecurity is tantamount more than ever. A guide, "Biosecurity In the Poultry Industry," is available for $15. It was published by the American Association of Avian Pathologists.

Growers can obtain a copy of the guide by calling Kim at New Bolton at (610) 444-4282.

Phillips Is Delaware Outstanding Young Farmer

HARRINGTON, Del. — A sixth generation farmer has been named the 1996-97 Delaware Outstanding Young Farmer during the Delaware state Jaycees Winter Conference, held recently in Wilmington.

Vance Phillips, and his wife Lisa and three children operate a poultry, grain and vegetable farm in Laurel.

The purpose of the Jaycees Outstanding Young Farmer program is to bring about a greater interest in the farmer and rancher, and to foster better urban-rural relations through the understanding of farmers' problems, as well as the appreciation of their contributions and achievements. It is also meant to inform the agribusiness people of the growing awareness of the farmers' importance and impact on America's economy.

Phillips was nominated for the honor by the Millsboro Jaycees.

Vance followed in his father's footsteps, remebering riding on his father's watermelon truck as early as when he was 5 years old.

As a teenager, he began raising his own watermelon, cantaloupes and sweet corn to help pay his way through college. In 1985 he graduated from University of Delaware with a bachelor's degree in agriculture.

On his farm he has installed a number of soil conservation practices, and his was one of the first in the state to use trickle irrigation, degradable plastic mulches, pregerminated seeds and honey bees for pollinating watermelons.

He has also incorporated poultry composting as part of his dead bird disposal program.

Recognizing the importance of public policy toward the future of farming in Delaware, he served for four years on the governor's Advisory Committee on Agriculture.

He is also involved in politics and ran in the Delaware primary for Republican nominee for United States senator.

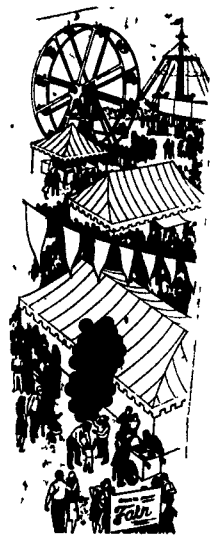
"In April, the members of Land O'Lakes and Atlantic Dairy Cooperative will unite to form a new, national organization that is focused on creating strong value-added markets for members' milk and providing on-farm production programs to serve producers into the 21st century."



The merger extends Land O'Lakes national production and marketing capabilities from coast to coast.

Headquartered in Arden Hills, Minn., Land O'Lakes is a food and agricultural cooperative owned by farmers, ranchers and member cooperatives. # Pa.DHIA Schedules Technician Conferences

DAVID BIGELOW
Training Coordinator

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The schedule for the 10 annual Pa.DHIA spring technician conferences starts March 21 and runs through April 10, at various locations throughout the state.

Attendance at the spring and fall conferences is mandatory for technicians. It is time spent providing technicians with updates on new technology and policy, as well as reviewing programs, field work and technician observations.

All conferences begin at 10 a.m. and end at 3 p.m.

The spring conference is just one of three annual conferences held to further update and educate each technician. Also, mini-conferences are held monthly to address any questions or concerns each technician may have concerning the job.

The main topics to be presented at this year's series of spring conferences include a new billing system, as well as a review of all reports and programs includes in the Pa.DHIA packages.

Along with these activities, time will be spent analyzing the Westfalia Dairy Plan reports and the Customized Optional reports that are currently available.

Technicians should be reminded to bring their computer and printer to the meeting they are to attend.

If other attendance arrangements need to be made, the region manager should be contacted immediately.

Please feel free to contact Pa.DHIA at 1-800-344-8378 if we can assist with your dairy operation.

Natural By Nature Is Natural For MacArthurs

(First in a series)

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

WEST GROVE (Chester Co.) — Ned and Susan MacArthur work at their business in the unfinished basement of their 1½ -year-old home.

It is located on the outskirts of West Grove in Chester County, off of Harmony Road, along a short residential development road that ends in a cul-de-sac.

Susan enters data of milk prices and such on a computer that she said is soon in need of upgrading.

She also answeqs the telephone when husband Ned is out of the office, or is involved in a discussion with someone else on another telephone at another desk.

They are partners not only in marriage, parents of twin girls, but with two other people in a business called Natural Dairy Products Corp.

Currently there are eight dairy farms, all but two practicing intensive grazing, producing certified organic milk to supply the business. Ned said he expects to have 11 small dairy farms producing certified organic milk for the company by mid-spring.

The role of the business is to find the markets, to make the payroll, to keep inventory, to work with the distributor, the processor, and to meet with and plan with the producers on pricing.

The company is owned by Ned, Susan, Ned's father Norman MacArthur, and Gary Comstock. An election of the company officers resulted with Norman as president, Ned as vice president of operations, and Comstock as vice president of sales. Susan is treasurer and is the main office person, handling the computer duties, including taking orders, doing invoices, accounts payable and receivable, and the payroll.

Other than those four business partners, the company also has a full-time employee, Joe Doran.

Ned and Susan described him as, "The hardest working guy in the organic dairy industry." Ned said Joe not only is a driver, but he also manages distribution out of the warehouse and Doran is committed to the business.

"It's nice to have somebody (in employ) who is as dedicated as those of us who are partners," Ned said in praise of Doran.

In the basement, the office area is more or less defined by an area carpet that takes up about a quarter of the floor area, and the desks, computer, copying machine and filing cabinets.

On the concrete basement wall above and to the right of Susan's computer desk is a large poster declaring, "Now Available. Organic milk. Natural By Nature."

A new half/half carton is on display nearby, as well as a small stack of fliers that were printed up for a trade show in Anaheim, California, "Natural Foods Expo-West."

Also in the basement is a ping-pong table, and, in a far corner, some exercise equipment.

The young company is in a relatively young business that grew out of controversy and public distrust of technology.

Ned said that he believes that the use of recombinant bovine somatotropin (rBST) is the main reason for the demand for "organic" milk — milk produced according to Organic Crop Improvement Association (OCIA) standards, that call for no manmade chemicals fed to, or injected in dairy animals.

As fact, there is no such thing as milk without bovine somatotropin. The cow makes it, and it's in the milk. The manufactured version is indistinguishable from the natural using modern testing technology.

The manufactured BST allowed for use commercially was approved for human consumption long ago, before years of research was conducted on herds to determine whether or not there were any other reasons to not approve the use of the hormone in cows as a stimulator to achieve extra milk production.

Other than spot checking on-farm practices, there is no way to determine whether or not the injectible hormone has been used to help produce milk, but there is still some reluctance by some consumers to accept milk or dairy products that have been produced that way.

And there are producers who refuse to use the product in their cows.

However, since the controversey officially ended when the manufactured hormone received approval, and milk produced with it is in every supply available through mainstream dairy outlets, those who continue to reject that technology represent a marketing opportunity.

And that's what the MacArthurs and the business partners have been doing — working to establish the name-brand and retail outlets and other infrastructure to produce, process and distribute milk under "organic" constraints.

While there is still no official legal designation for "organic" production, the OCIA standards were the first created and the first of which Ned and Susan became familiar.

After meeting with different producers and talking to retailers and doing some homework, and living in a small rental apartment for years, Ned and Susan decided to dedicate themselves to making the concept a reality — creating a business infrastructure in alliance with farmers to support local production of organic milk to market to the nearby millions of consumers in the Mid-Atlantic states.

After helping to establish a local OCIA chapter by which producers could be certified, and getting producers to do so and believe in the concept, the next step was to find a processor.

Ned said that basically, the farmers with whom they have been working were interested in the organic market, because they believe in producing that way, and in using intensive grazing and other production techniques that they believe are healthier for the cows. And because they wanted the premium prices that the extra limitations to produce organically requires.

But a processor wasn't to be found who could handle the relatively small volume of milk that requires no contamination by "regular" milk.

Then, Ned said, he saw that Sunnydale Farms, of Brooklyn, N.Y., was advertising for organic farmers to join up with them.

Susan MacArthur works at the computer in the basement office of Natural Dairy Products Corp. She and her husband brought a lot from their past work experiences into use in creating the business.

"We had a meeting with them (Sunnydale), with their chief financial officer, and saw that their idea was similar to ours. We saw the opportunity that fairly quickly lead to a contract," Ned said.

He said they decided to cooperate in the development of an organic milk supply, and processing and marketing it.

They are now in an agreement with Sunnydale Farms, in the venture. Sunnydale is self-promoted as the largest fluid milk processor in New York.

Sunnydale markets organic milk in New York and north, while the Natural by Nature brand sells in Pennsylvania and south of New York.

The milk is hauled from the farms — mostly in Lancaster County, one in Lebanon County and another in Berks County — to the processor, Longacre's Modern Dairy north of Pottstown in Barto. There the milk is processed, pasteurized and packaged and sent for distribution.

From there, the dairy products are distributed to those on a pre-order basis only.

The pre-order means there are no returns of expired sell-by car-

Cumberland Cooperative Sheep, Wool Growers Meet

BETH MILLER
Cumberland Co
Correspondent

HUNTSDALE (Cumberland Co.) — David Greene had a motto for those who attended the Cumberland Sheep and Wool Growers' 64th annual meeting.

"Whiter, brighter, longer, stronger," he told the crowd that had gathered in the Penn Township Fire Hall.

Greene, who is a sheep producer and an agricultural agent for Carroll County, Md., was the keynote speaker for the event. His address was titled "Future Trends in Sheep and Wool Marketing."

All in all, today is a great time to be in the lamb business, Greene said.

That is because there are fewer sheep, meaning there are fewer lambs and therefore a greater market for the lambs that are available, he said.

Meanwhile, Greene said, prices for the wool business seem to have bottomed out. One of the most vital steps wool producers must take now is to improve the marketing of their products, he said.

Greene put forth 10 important points that he said the wool growers association should explore in order to improve its wool pool.

For one thing, he said, the association should look into setting up a system whereby its members can sell their wool direct to the mill.

Participation in regional meetings should be encouraged, Greene said.

Growers should standardize the preparation of their product through classing and labeling, he said. For example, they should separate white-faced sheep from black-faced sheep, Greene said.

Utilizing square bales of wool rather than round bales is a good idea, he added, and core testing of wool should be employed to develop buyer information.

Wool should be sold based on the clean wool fiber present and wool pool records should be computerized, he said.

Greene said efforts should be made to recognize local wool growers who do outstanding jobs.

Finally, he said, education programs should be provided to expand growers' knowledge about wool quality and marketing efforts should be spread out throughout the entire year.

Natural By Nature Is Natural For MacArthurs

tons of milk to the processor. Disposal, if there is any, is the responsbility of those who order it.

And while that may have some limitations, the organic drinking milk sells for about twice what non-organically certified drinking milk will bring. Those who can afford to pay the premium, apparently can afford to order what they want ahead of time.

The smallness of the business is now not a hinderance, Ned said, though he does expect it to grow. But for now, because of the relatively small number of producers, they've been able to work directly with producers to determine prices received at the farm above the levels set by the government formula.

Ned said that every six months, a meeting is held at a Lancaster restaurant, and producers look at their costs of production and what they need for compensation.

The Natural Dairy Products partners also have compensation needs that are discussed and included in a target price.

This way, the producers can better plan their operational margins and eliminate some of the volatility that goes along with a marketplace for milk where quality is less of an issue, and convenience seems to have more attraction.

"Because of that (the six-month meetings and farmer input into pricing), pricing has been driven as much by the farmers as by us," he said.

He said that, a recent price paid for milk to producers was $19 per hundredweight, with 15 cents premium per point over 3.5 percent butterfat, as well as other quality bonuses.

The largest herd of a producer supplying Natural Dairy Products Corp. was up to about 90 cows, while the smallest milked 23. There is one Jersey herd, a Dutchbelt herd, a some other Jerseys and some Brown Swiss.

Brown Swiss are Ned's favorite breed, he said, adding that if he could have a herd of his own, it would be Brown Swiss and Jersey.

Albert's Organics, in Bridgeport, N.J. (formerly in Kennet, but moved to new location this February), is the main distributor of the Natural by Nature organic milk.

Ned and Susan said that early in the venture they had "beat the bush," stopping at businesses to try to get them to take orders of the organic milk.

And they also tried to distribute it.

"We were both working 20 hours a day and we still weren't able to get the job done," Ned said. After contracting with a distributer, things turned around quickly.

Now, orders are taken on Monday for milk to be delivered Wednesday. Orders taken Wednesday are delivered on Friday, and Friday orders are delivered the following Monday.

The Longacre's plant processes the same day the product is shipped, though the new product addition, half/half, is processed on Thursdays and distributed only on Fridays.

Ned said the Lancaster region is "a natural" for organic milk production and processing.

He said that the long growing season is conducive to intensive grazing, which he said he feels is compatible with organic production. "They go hand-in-hand," he said.

The proximity of production to markets is perfect, he said. "Lancaster County is in perfect position to service this market. This is one of the reasons that, early on, I thought this would work."

Further, though there are three other brands of organic milk being marketed in the area, and competition was already being established in the organic milk arena, none of them supplies local product.

He said one of the biggest barriers to entering the market was to "... get customers to understand this is the only local supply of organic milk in the Mid-Atlantic states."

Ned and Susan's interest in dairy products goes back with Ned's interest in dairying, while growing up on a small, non-dairy farm near Avondale, not too far from where he lives now.

His father was an organic chemist (which means he dealt with chemistry involving carbon-based molecules).

"We didn't have dairy cows, but neighbors did," Ned said. He ended up spending a lot of his time at the neighbors' farms, helping to feed and help with milking, and helping with field work.

"As far back as I can remember, (dairy farming) is what I wanted to do," Ned said. While in high school he worked on dairy farms, and went West farming in the summer.

He and Susan met at Colorado College in Colorado Springs. She has a bachelor's degree in anthropology and worked in New Mexico on American Native reservations, studying land use and architecture. She said she loved that work, but she has also worked for a doctor, for an accountant doing taxes, and was also doing taxes on a part time basis when they moved East.

After they met at college and figured they would be getting married, they went out to Oregon, where Ned's mother had a beef and alfalfa farm.

The two of them worked there, operating an irrigation system that required moving lots of long sections of pipe twice a day. Susan said she hated it. The pipes were ungainly and awkward to handle and the hay was always soaking wet as they moved through to relocate the pipework.

The hay bales were larger too. Ned said 80 to 85 pound square bales were the norm, and they all had to be picked up from the ground and loaded onto a wagon.

He did custom field work at the same time.

After the two got married, Ned said he wanted to move back East.

They had wanted to dairy farm. Ned got a job milking cows at a farm in Westtown.

"We had saved money to rent a farm and buy cows and heifers," Ned recalled. He said he was to the point where, if he was going to keep milking cows, he wanted to be milking his own.

According to Ned, it was 1991 or 1992, when he saw an article in a national dairy publication that dealt with the entrepreneurialship of a Vermont couple who decided to turn their dairy farm into an organic operation and make and process organic cheeses.

"That was my inspiration," Ned said. "I started poking around. My idea was to put together a small processing plant and get with farmers and put a brand together.

"The idea kept getting bigger, but it wasn't financially feasible to have our own small processing plant."

Further, he said that the organic movement that started in Vermont and in Wisconsin had created the model of what could be done on a fairly large scale, and those producers are his competition now.

There is currently a Mid-Western-based organic dairy cooperative seeking producers in the south and central regions of Pennsylvania.

From the standpoint of the MacArthurs, the key to maintaining strength locally in the organic market is to maintain local supply. They are stressing local quality and freshness of their product compared to product shipped in many miles.

The producers who started with Natural Dairy Products shared in the tough times, as well as the better times of present and the foreseeable future, Ned said.

A chapter of OCIA was formed to begin the organic certification of dairy producers, and those producers are as much responsible for the apparent successful road that the business is on.

The structure of OCIA allows a local board of review to determine whether or not a producer complies with "organic" requirements. An outside inspector visits the farms needing to maintain their certification and the inspector makes a report.

But that report is submitted to the local chapter board, comprised of all dairy producers except for two — a consultant and an organic food retailer for final review.

Recommendations for change come from those also maintaining the certification status.

"It's not uncomplicated," Ned said. "It's a lot of work for the chairman (of the board)."

He said their chapter chairman was unpaid for his extra work, until recently, when the producers have been able to start recompensation him for his services.

"We were all able to stick together to get a new product established," Ned said of the producers. "Those times are behind us now, but they are not forgotten."

Ned's father joined the group in 1993, and brought with him the business acumen garnered from 35 years as a professional using his doctorate in organic chemistry.

Likewise, Susan was able to use a variety of past jobs to bring expertise and skills to the business. She actually used to work for Albert's Organics, the current distributor, prior to starting the Natural Dairy Products, and she worked in sales with Gary Comstock, who left that distribution business to become a partner with the MacArthurs.

Ned and Gary spent evenings prior discussing and creating the company in their heads.

The additional role that Sunnydale plays in the relationship is that they pay the federally mandated blend price of milk to the producers, while Natural Dairy Products pays the organic premium out of a pool managed by the company.

For the first time this year, through the help of Sunnydale, the bulk purchasing of organic grains and forages has been able to be arranged, and transportation and storage taken care of.

Also, the member-producers don't have to buy a year's worth of the bulk-order forages and grains under the system.

In addition fluid milk, the company also markets organic orange and grapefruit juices, eggs, cream cheese, rice pudding, chocolate pudding, lowfat yogurt and yogurt shakes.

The creation of the company is the first entrepreneurial effort of the MacArthurs, and Ned reiterated a comment made over the years by many involved in small business — "If I knew then what I know now ..."

However, he said perhaps the key to getting through the demands and difficulties has been that he had been ignorant of all that was going to be required of him.

He said that in an article he read about starting a small business, the advice was, "Dare to be naive."

"I think that's probably right," Ned said. "It's almost like you have to put the work in before you can see the opportunities."

Mid-Atlantic Dairy Conference Goes Global

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — The Mid-Atlantic Dairy Management Conference was held recently at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center and focused on the theme of, "Thriving in a global economy."

The conference was organized by industry people and staff from seven universities including Penn State University, University of Pennsylvania, University of Delaware, University of Maryland, West Virginia University, Rutgers University and Virginia Tech.

The two-day conference was broken down into five different topics, further broken down into half-hour lecture sessions or roundtable and panel discussions.

In terms of a global economy, speakers included a variety of industry people and organization leaders, such as Clyde Rutherford of Dairylea Cooperative. Rutherford talked about the business environment and how mergers and consolidations have occured.

He said that the best time to change for the future is while there is no immediate pressing need. That way preparations can be made from a position of strength and help with being in a position to be able to take advantage of opportunities.

He talked about the proximity of consumers to producers in the Mid-Atlantic states and the potential that represents to those who can serve that market.

The change in the role of the cooperative from mainly a milk marketing organization to a service provider of such things as insurances, bulk buying of supplies, loans, financial investment tools, and consulting services is indicitive of the type of metamorphosis that modern conditions and membership needs has created.

In a similar vein, Rutherford talked about the creation of an information technology cooperative, called Dairy One, that was formed earlier this year between the Northeast Dairy Herd Improvement Association and Dairylea, that is designed to give members an edge in laboratory service and the ability to get information for their farming operations.

Dr. Robert Yonkers, a Penn State Extension agricultural economist, discussed the changes in the world trade environment for agriculture and the implications that has for dairy farmers.

He talked about the development of the 1996 Farm Bill, called the Federal Agricultural Improvement and Reform Act (FAIR), and the changes in world trade policies, especially with the opening of agricultural trade, that came about through the last General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

The opening of markets and the removal of government support has changed the opportunities in the dairy industry in different regions and in different sectors.

Understanding and using marketing forces and using price control tools such as foward contracting are some of the examples of changing demands upon those in the dairy industry, especially producers, who have to think of themselves as they fit within the entire realm of the dairy industry — not just at who they want to be considered.

The change in agriculture and the dairy industry and the demands it places upon the individual were discussed by Mike Beohlje of Purdue University in his talk about the industrialization of agriculture.

The change from dairying as a lifestyle to dairying using disciplined business management and attitude, as well as being adept at using technologies well advanced beyond the understanding of the general public, and being able to implement and then maintain the production demands as they best position the producer for profit in his specific market are some of the things that Boehlje discussed in his analysis.

Risk management and ability to adapt to market demands are among the necessary skills Beohlje sees as necessary to continued success in the dairy industry.

Some of the sessions dealt with the latest on nutrition, reproduction and health issues, and farm management issues.

Among those issues, Bob Cropp with the University of Wisconsin, discussed risk management using futures contracts and cash prices to maintain a more consistent income in broad terms because of time constraints.

In effect, what he emphasized is that these tools are not impossible to understand and that they offer a potential advantage to ensuring farm business stability. He said that, basically those dairy producers who use future's contracts are not doing so to make money but to cut losses by offsetting cash prices with futures prices — the goal is to offset low cash prices with higher future prices, and likewise high cash prices with lower future prices.

He explained that the whole reason to be involved in both pricing areas is merely to offset losses as well as gains, in order to maintain a more predictable income.

Jeff Reneau, with the University of Minnesota talked about building and using teams on farms to get better information and thus get better results from decisions.

He said that today information is polluted because there is not reliable screening device to sort through all the junk being sent over the airways and cable lines and computer networks.

Not only is the validity of the information available at question, but techniques for determining what is important is even more confusing.

As a result, it has perhaps never before been as important to develop a team of trusted consultants who cooperate under a banner of keeping the farm profitable.

He said that farmers should not be concerned that using consultants represents a personal weakness. He said that consultants should be considered the same as a coach is considered in a sport — to provide judgement from experience (research-based) and to provide that judgement based on facts.

Reneau went over a checklist of things to look for in a consultant and things to avoid.

In brief, he said that undesirable traits of a consultant include an attitude that the rest of the industry experts don't know as much, and advice that comes without research support.

He also said the real key to forming a successful support team is for the farm owner to be the manager of the team. He has to be the one who has the goals and he has to be able to motivate the others to want to be involved in achieving those goals.

He said that sometimes, even though competency levels and abilities are not lacking, some people just do not get along well together.

Rather than attempting to overcome what may well be an irrational dislike, he advised that the farmer make some choices about who stays on the team without allowing the situation to turn into anything else.

If the mix of people doesn't work well, get other people who do work together well. Each situation is different, he said, but successfully organizing such a team can make all the difference to the success of the farm.

Shows Dedicated To Hoss's

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The 1997 Pennsylvania Beef Expo Junior Steer and Heifer Shows will be dedicated to Willard E. "Bill" Campbell, the president and founder of Hoss's Steak and Sea House restaurant chain.

The Pennsylvania Beef Expo will be held at Penn State's Ag Arena and Toftrees Hotel and Resort on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 27-29. The junior steer and heifer shows will be on Saturday, March 29 starting at 9 a.m.

The Hoss's Steak and Sea House restaurant growth and quality is a true success story, originating in Pennsylvania. There are 39 Hoss's locations throughout Pennsylvania with plans for continued expansion.

"The Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association and other beef cattle organizations in Pennsylvania and nationally have appreciated the promotion of beef menu items by Hoss's over the years which has contributed to increased beef consumption trends," said Dr. Lowell L. Wilson, professor of animal science at Penn State and secretary of the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association. "The attention of Hoss's to unique menu items, large servings, and to quality assurance has enhanced the reputation of beef, which remains the mainstay in the American consumer's diet. Hoss's has sought to fill the gap between fast food and full-service restaurants, and they have achieved that goal. They cater to the family trade and specialize in cooked-to-order steaks, chicken, and seafood."

When asked about his philosophy in initiating and expanding the Hoss's restaurant chain, Campbell explains, "To us, people who patronize our restaurant must be treated as guests, and we especially like to have entire families as customers."

Hoss's Steak and Sea House, under the guidance of Campbell, has always been an active supporter of 4-H and FFA organizations. Campbell believes in the farming community and strives to help the youth which he feels are the backbone of tomorrow. Hoss's is active in many other community events in addition to the support of agricultural youth activities.

According to Ollie Weiss, president of the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association, "it is because of this generous and continuous support of so many youth activities, including the Pennsylvania Beef Expo Junior activities, that we wish to dedicate the 1997 junior shows to Mr. Willard Campbell and to Hoss's. This is the first of the eight Beef Expo Junior Shows that have been dedicated to either a person or a company."

More information about the Beef Expo activities, including the Annual Cattlemen's Awards Banquet, the Performance-Tested Bull Sale, the Junior Skillathon, the Purebred Cattle Sales and the junior shows can be obtained by calling the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association at (814) 692-4208 or Penn State University's Dairy and Animal Science Department at (814) 863-3659.

Greene reminded his listeners that the classing of wool must begin while it is still on the sheep. Overall, wool is of much better quality than it was 30 or 40 years ago, he said.

Other action at the meeting saw the confirmation of association directors Steven Ebersole, Ken Staver, Credon Bixler, Ben Bow, Tim Hocker, Robert Holtry and Waldo Hartman.

The financial report showed that the association raised $10,904 during its 1996 wool pool.

The association's 1997 wool pool is scheduled to take place on June 11 at the Carlisle Fairgrounds.

Somerset Dairy Community Updated On Industry, New Proposal

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

BERLIN (Somerset Co.) — "We feel it is time that we recognize there are some great genetics in our cattle," Tom Dum told 130 persons at the combined Somerset County DHIA and Somerset County Holstein Club's combined annual banquet.

Dum, from Elliotsburg, is a consultant to the National Holstein Association. He was at the mike following Ken Raney, State College, newly appointed executive director of the Pa. Holstein Association.

"This year's national committee has a proposal to change the way cows are identified," Dum told the group who listened closely to what he had to say.

Going into detail, Dum explained the proposal. If approved, a registered certificate there will be an "Open Disclosure," with the percent of grading prominently displayed, either with an "I" meaning "Identified," or a "Q" meaning "Qualified."

This proposal will ensure the positive identification of calves, according to Dum. It must pass by a 75 percent vote.

Dum also detailed other proposals for which the board of directors is in unanimous agreement owing to concerns about how the cows coming into the U.S. from the Canadian and foreign markets, are graded.

"We want to stay in front on the world market," he said adding, "Ladies and gentlemen, whether you like it or not, the cow of the future has to be better than what you are milking today."

"The value of a cow is not measured by a certificate," Dum said. "It is determined by her performance."

"We are in a changing market, but the dairy industry will survive," Dum stated, positively.

Enlarging on a remark, made earlier by another speaker, Dum added, "I'll bet you can't name one other industry than farming that pays the truck, going both ways. We've been used," he concluded.

Raney strongly urged that calves and heifers should be registered and that AI sires should show a plus in milk production.

"Try to get a bull out of a good cow family," he said.

He also listed some important upcoming dates. In 1998, for instance, southwestern Pennsylvania is hosting the state Holstein convention.

Harry Mosholder, president of the Somerset County Holstein Club, led its business meeting.

New directors elected to the Holstein Club were Merlin Maust, Meyersdale; Willis Sharp, Stoystown and Jeff Smiley, Berlin.

Gary Lynch, handled the DHIA business. He is president of the county DHIA.

"There are definitely some changes coming," Lynch said, with concern, "There is a decreasing number of herds and costs keep going up."

New DHIA directors were elected — Tim Clites, Berlin; Tom Flannery, Somerset and Joyce Ringler, Berlin.

DHIA Herd Management Awards went to Bill Hunsburger, Davidsville, first; Carrdale Holsteins, Somerset, second; North View Farms, Berlin, third and tied for fourth, Jim and Elaine Bocsy, Stoystown and George Stahl, Somerset.

The top three herds for protein production were North View Farms, 811 pounds; George Stahl, 771 pounds and Bill Hunsberger, 762 pounds.

The presentations were made by Larry Hay, Pa. DHIA regional supervisor.

Hay said that as of January 1 DHIA isn't the watchdog that it previously was. While members may not be innovative in a testing program, Hay strongly cautioned: "Don't jump into someting without checking with your AI technician."

Amanda Meier, the Somerset County dairy princess told guests that speaking to college students was her most challenging encounter to date.

Dr. Robert Bastian was master of ceremonies.

First Jersey Export Shipment To China

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — The first Jerseys to be exported to China, from any country, for dairy purposes since the 1940s left from Wisconsin.

Six heifers and two bulls were donated to the Guangzhou Dairy Research Institute in Southeast China. The Chinese will be conducting demonstrations and using the animals for research.

All are top pedigree animals with the potential for production and conformation.

Animals from Wisconsin were targeted because of the stringent health requirements required by the Chinese government.

For the Jersey breeders involved, this was an opportunity to promote Jerseys on a new international stage.

"We felt it was important to reintroduce the Chinese to Jerseys," said Marion Barlass from Janesville.

The Barlass herd has been active in the export market, sending cattle to Colombia, Brazil, Dominican Republic, Guatemala, and Peru. Barlass said they hoped the China export venture would lead to a new export market to China.

While the Barlass herd is experienced with international exports, this was the first such experience for the Menns of Norwalk.

Jackie Menn said this was an opportunity for their herd to begin merchandising. After expanding their breeding program, and a bumper heifer crop, the Menns were able to offer top genetics for export.

The Menns sent a bull calf sired by Mason Boomer Sooner Berretta and a heifer out of a young sire.

The seeds for this export shipment were first sown in 1989 when Calvin Covington, executive secretary and chief executive officer for the American Jersey Cattle Association first began discussions with the Chinese.

"The Guangzhou region of China is very hot and very humid. They were having breeding problems (with their cattle) and they had read about Jerseys," said Covington. According to Covington, the Chinese like a milk with a higher fat content and "they like ice cream."

Since 1989, three groups of representatives from China have visited the United States to study Jerseys.

"China is a country with a billion people, and their per capita consumption of dairy products is a fraction of ours. Economically, it is the fastest growing country in the world. They are becoming more westernized, and with westernization comes an increased consumption of dairy products. They line up for ice cream."

The export market for Jerseys is improving in 1997 according to Neal Smith, manager of Jersey Marketing Service (JMS), the cattle marketing arm of the American Jersey Cattle Association.

"We've had a number of serious inquiries from South America," said Smith, as well as recent export shipments to Thailand and Japan and an embryo shipment to Denmark is in progress.

For more information on the market for Jerseys, contact Jersey Marketing Service at 614/-861-3636 or Fax 614/861-8040.

New Milk Sample Delivery System In New York

ITHACA, N.Y. — Dairy Producers, Northeast DHIA Technicians and Milk Handlers in New York State that use Milk Check Laboratories have had their delivery service substantially upgraded. All parts of New York are now serviced by a sample delivery truck three times a week. Previously this area was serviced by the temperature controlled trucks no more than twice each week. Another boost to service results from the truck routes now being completed in one day. Previously these longer routes took two days.

"We are very pleased with the improved service," according to Bill Hulslander, Director of the Northeast DHIA Farm Service, "I expect that members in New York will notice a shorter and more consistent turnaround time on their DHIA results. We did not have to risk mail or UPS shipping to get it." Bill went on to explain that it is really important to minimize sample agitation and control the temperature of samples for consistently reliable results. The only way Northeast DHIA feels it can assure dependable results on their farm samples, month after month, is by using the temperature controlled delivery system. Since the transportation system also handles producer payment and quality samples, temperature and handling are underscored as issues.

This change was brought about by the newly former Cooperative "Dairy One." This Cooperative was formed with the mission to get needed change done in the dairy industry. "This is a genuine win win situation," according to Nelvin Empet, Chief Operating Officer of Dairy One. "A substantial share of customers get improved service and by combining the previous Dairylea and Northeast DHIA sample delivery system we are controlling the cost. This is a good example of how we can reduce redundancy and inefficiency and improve service."

Milk Check Laboratories provide DHI, producer payment and research milk analysis as well as prepare calibration and quality control samples for other milk laboratories throughout the greater Northeast.

Consumers Benefit

POTTSVILLE (Schuylkill Co.) — USDA administers commodity programs through the local Farm Service Agency located in the Ag Center on the Gordon Nagle Trail.

Approximately 20,000 acres of corn are grown in Schuylkill County. More than 100 million pounds of livestock feed are harvested from this acreage annually.

This feed generates milk, eggs, and meat distributed locally through farmers markets and grocery stores. Many products found on grocery store shelves are manufactured using grain, dairy products, or eggs.

Programs administered by USDA today encourage farmers to make planting decisions on market conditions. If corn prices are high farmers plant more corn. If prices are low, plantings are decreased. The "so-call" giveaway programs meet your food needs by assuring your farm community stays in business. Stable farm income assures a stable food supply.

If you wish to have more information on the Farm Service Agency and USDA programs, call (717) 622-1555.

Family Celebrates 50 Years In Farm Equipment Business

NEW RINGGOLD (Schuylkill Co.) — The year was 1946. Harry Truman was president, Gen. McArthur commanded the occupied force in Japan and Ike commanded the forces in Europe. In the communities of Southern Schuylkill County, farmers laughed with the Fibber McGee and Molly, sang with the Andrews Sisters and dreamed of someday owning a new tractor. Rob Eckroth, a farmer himself, was aware of the needs of the farmers, and when the Fred Nester IH dealership became available, took advantage of the opportunity. And what an opportunity it was; parity based price supports were strong, farmers were tired of horses, and no new tractors were available for the W.W.II years.

Rob Eckroth brought his son Lorton into the business as well as young George Teter and mechanic Harold Bensinger. The spacious store as we now kwow is was erected as well as a smaller shop. All was in readiness when in March of 1947 the grand opening was held. Farmers filled the store by day and brought their families for promotional IH movies in the evening. The stage was set for a great sales except the manufacturers could not meet the demands of farmers. Only 10 to 12 tractors, mostly Farmall H's were available that first year and they went to farmers like Luther Koch, Herb Hill, William Mimm, Lenny Shafer. As tractors became available, Rob and Lorton were able to increase business even with the strong competition. John Deere was sold by Sterner's of Orwigsburg; Fergusons by Eichert's of Reddale Road; and Fords by Charles Snyder of South Tamaqua. Also IH dealerships were as common as Chevrolet garages.

The shop took on a reputation for good mechanics. Carl Boltz, Clayton Semmel and Woodrow Shellhammer lending their skills. Approximately 40 overhauls and Fire Crater powerpacks were installed in a year, along with CharLynn powersteering kits and M&W live hydraulic kits. By the mid-fifties, IH would accept any challenge and so George Teter and Vernon Eckroth would participate in plowing contests. A #70 plow hooked behind a Farmall 400 was a difficult match to beat. Another event of note was in 1961 when Rob sent George Teter to pick up their first 1206 from Harrisburg on their own flat bed. Who would ever need a 100 hp tractor? Also in the 1960s, social unrest and the assassins' bullets brought down three of our national leaders. Just as low prices and the drought brought down many of our nearby farmers. In 1969, the business lost its founder Robert Eckroth to a stroke. So Lorton, George and Woodrow had to carry on the business with fewer and fewer farmers. But as many of the area dealerships folded a door of opportunity again availed itself. So it was when Daniel and Eugene purchased the business in 1983 and initiated an expansion program that now includes three stores. It is from this rich heritage and the dedication of the area farmers that Eckroth Bros. Farm Equipment hopes to be here for many years.

In the old days, tractors came to New Ringgold by railroad flat car and were driven the mile out of town to the shop. In the photo are Lorton Eckroth and son Lorton Jr.

Pennsylvania Horse Farms Open Doors to Visitors April 5 & 6

Visitors to Sweigart Stables, Denver, enjoy a demonstration by an American Saddlebred western pleasure horse.

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Sixteen professional stables in eastern Pennsylvania will open their doors to the public for two days, April 5 and 6, during the fifth annual Pennsylvania Horse Farms Open House.

The event, which is free, is a chance for would-be equestrians to visit some of Pennsylvania's most beautiful horse farms, to learn about breeds of horses, styles of riding, and breeding, raising, caring for and training horses, and to explore the many opportunities for becoming involved with horses right in their own backyards. The tour, produced by Pennsylvania Equestrian, is free and self-guided, and individuals travel from stable to stable at their own pace in their own cars.

With more than 174,000 horses, Pennsylvania ranks fifth in the US — far ahead of Kentucky — in generation of income from the horse industry. Pennsylvanians spend nearly two-thirds of a billion dollars annually on their horses, and most of that is spent in the southeastern quadrant of the state, where the Open House is centered.

The sixteen stables participating in the Open House include breeds, disciplines, and activities that bridge the spectrum of Pennsylvania's horse industry. Nationally-known show stables, breeding farms, stables that specialize in young riders, a facility that has preserved open space for future generations of riders and one of the nation's only orphan foal nurseries will all welcome visitors for tours, demonstrations and fun.

Nearly anything that can be done with a horse will be demonstrated during the Open House. Roping, reining, dressage, hunt seat and saddle seat equitation, jumping, drill team, western pleasure, showmanship, hunt pair, musical freestyle, polo, carriage pair and pleasure driving demonstrations are all on the schedule. In addition, horse shoeing, equine massage, nutrition, foal imprinting and corrective shoeing will be demonstrated, and carriage and harness makers, tack shops' equine artists and other vendors will have displays. One stable will offer pony rides, another mini-riding lessons. And visitors can watch an intercollegiate horse show, a practice polo match and a model horse show. Many stables will have horses for sale and young foals for visitors to meet.

More information and maps to the stables will be on the internet after March 1 at www.horseshow.com, or phone Pennsylvania Equestrian at (717) 898-5874.

The participating stables and their focus include: Sweigart Stables, Denver. American Saddlebreds, (717) 336-2327; Red Rose Paint Farm, Stevens. Sweigart Stables sent both the junior and senior saddle seat equitation champions to the Pennsylvania 4-H show last year. Melissa Meiskey, senior champion, and Ashley Richardson, junior champion, are among the many young equitation stars who call Sweigart Stables their second home. The farm's riders also earned a number of state high point awards, and a pony was named American Horse Shows Association Harness Pony of the Year for 1996.

Trainer/instructor Brook Sweigart-Reider, an ARICP certified instructor, teaches saddle seat and western equitation, driving, and balanced seat riding. Lessons are geared to ability and experience, with instruction for beginners to finished show competitors of all ages. The farm places its emphasis on family involvement with riding.

Various breeds including American Saddlebreds, Morgans, Hackney ponies, and half-Arabians fill the farm's 22 stalls. Sweigart Stables also offers boarding, training and sales. The farm's amenities includes indoor and outdoor arenas, heated barn with individual water, and paddocks for turnout.

The farm is also home to Top Hats and Derbies, a youth group of the American Saddlebred Horse Association. The group, composed of children ages 6 to 17 from throughout Pennsylvania and New Jersey, aims to have fun while learning about horses.

During the Open House, farrier John Haws will shoe horses and answer questions, and visitors can watch lessons of various kinds. The Top Hats and Derbies youth group will sell refreshments. Saturday only, A & H Harness, a Churchtown tack shop, will operate a booth with tack and supplies.

National Farmers Union Holds Convention

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — In an address to the delegates and members of the National Farmers Union's (NFU) 95th anniversary convention, Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman reported the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) would be establishing a national commission on small farms "to develop an aggressive strategy for keeping this important American tradition alive and well."

"Our department has not done enough for small farmers and we will work hard to expand opportunities for you," Glickman said. He said that small farmers have suffered for decades and that it is his "personal priority to see that change.

"And we will be searching for alternatives to delink the National Cheese Exchange (NCE) from the basic formula milk price," the secretary stated. "It's a very bad way to set price and I think change will happen."

Glickman said the NCE is under scrutiny and USDA is in a comment period where producers can have input. He commented that the NCE is a thinly traded market and described the present milk program structure as a system that "pits region against region, state against state and producer against producer."

In introducing Glickman, NFU President Leland Swenson read the secretary a resolution adopted by the NFU board of directors concerning the on-going reorganization of USDA.

The resolution states:

1. Opposed to USDA's efforts to dismantle the Farm Service Agency (FSA) delivery system through office closures and elimination of county office employee jobs and supported adequate funding to supports the FSA Service Centers.

2. Opposed to any attempt to reduce the authority of county committees.

3. Opposed to any effort to remove farm credit from FSA.

4. Supports efforts to increase representation of under-represented groups or elected county committee.

Glickman said the USDA reorganization is fueled by the administration and Congress' desire for a balanced budget. He stated there is not the need for as many offices and that the reorganization could save as much as $8 billion.

"There is no master plan that says which offices will close," he explained. "The changes must be sensible and preserve consumer confidence."

The secretary supports some mergers of FSA and Rural Development and Conservation programs.

He said he is against a balanced budget amendment because it has an onerous impact during disasters and acts of God.

"I don't want an amendment to the Constitution of the United States that will mean farmers will suffer," he added.

Addressing the livestock concentration issue, Glickman drew applause when he said he would support "mandatory reporting" by the cattle industry if voluntary reporting proved ineffective and said the USDA would be looking at contract poultry production in the U.S. He said small farmers needed accurate information to make marketing decisions.

The secretary described conservation, risk management and trade as three major challenges for the future. He said the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) will be the farm bill of the future. He referred to CRP as "the number one tool for ensuring sustainable agricultural growth."

"Fifty years from now our children will not remember the corn program," he stated. "They will only remember if we left them a legacy of land to raise crops in the future."

Glickman supports insurance to protect against massive market variation, credit for farmers hurt during the '80s by restructuring and believes haying and grazing on CRP land should be allowed during volatile markets.

Secretary Glickman praised NFU and President Leland Swenson for the great leadership provided on agricultural issues.

He said that Leland Swenson, "has the ear of not only me, but the president." He described Swenson as one person people respect and told the Farmers Union audience they should be proud of him.

"The role of USDA is to provide good service to farmers," Glickman concluded. "We're going to do the best we can under congressional budget guidelines to have an effective system."

In other business, an NFU Convention panelist reported a positive long-term outlook for farm program reforms.

American farmers may not be ready to demand major changes in the Federal Agriculture Improvement and Reform Act (FAIR) of 1996 today, but the roller coaster nature of farm markets means that situation is likely to change.

That was the assessment of three panelists who participate in an opening day workshop of the convention.

University of Tennessee Agricultural Economist Daryll Ray said political and economic ingredients may not be right for change this year, "but chances are 50-50 they will be during the next five to 10 years."

"If market prices go low enough and you (farmers) get loud enough, reforms will be possible," added Tom Buis, agricultural policy advisor to Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-SD.

Buis said concern about lack of a real safety net in the new farm program prompted Daschle to introduce new legislation to remove the cap on commodity loan rates, allow for extending commodity loans for an additioanl six months beyond the historic nine months, expand the Crop Revenue Coverage program to more counties and crop and prioritize additional U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) resources toward producer-owned, value-added processing cooperatives.

"This isn't wild-eyed, off-the-wall legislation," Buis said. "Just as farmers are taking risks, so are their local communities and economies. These are needed, risk management tools."

Joy Harwood, chief of the Crops Branch of USDA's Economic Research Service, supported Buis with statistics indicating that the experimental crop revenue insurance plan provides the most effective option for reducing producer risk — even in unpredictable climates.

Buis said substantial livestock losses resulting from blizzards in South Dakota and other Northern Plains states have also demonstrated the need for farm program revisions restoring the Emergency Livestock Feed Program.

While expressing relative optimism for long-term change in farm policy, Ray said immediate changes will be more difficult to accomplish because of the tendency of Congress "not to change farm bill fundamentals midstream" and because many do not believe that FAIR has had a "chance to succeed for fail."

While acknowledging the higher cost of the current program, Ray indicated that congressional emphasis on balancing the budget also is likely to work against significant change in FAIR.

National Farmers Union Vice President for Legislative Services Larry Mitchell reminded workshop participants that the Freedom to Farm Act never got out of the House Agriculture Committee.

"Freedom to Farm eliminated permanent farm law, completely removed the floor under commodity support rates, did not extend the Conservation Reserve Program and failed to include sections for nutrition, credit, conservation, dairy and others," Mitchell said.

The Farmers Union lobbyist noted that FAIR retained permanent law and many other traditional farm bill features. "It's no bed of roses, but it is much better than Freedom to Farm."

Panelists agreed that the continuation of permanent farm law means farm policy will be revisited — regardless of the current congressional attitude.

Also speaking at the convention was U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas.

He said there never has been a more important time in history for agricultural producers to educate members of Congress, but it is imperative that the agricultural community come to a consensus or our confusion will become intolerable.

Addressing more than 800 Farmers Union members, Stenholm implored farmers and ranchers to stay optimistic in a world of uncertainty, after listing the challenges that last year's farm bill presents for family-sized agriculture.

"We've got a lemon, and now we've got to make some lemonade," said Stenholm, who is the ranking Democratic member on the House Agriculture Committee.

"We have the most abundant, the safest and the cheapest food supply in the world. And Americans know it. So, the 2 percent of the population that farms, and ranchers want to know why they get treated the way they do (by congressional budget cuts)," Stenholm said.

"Well, in the past we've spent too much time asking that question, and it's time we start solving our own problems instead of feeling sorry for ourselves. Farmers Union and other agricultural groups have realized that they need to work together to do this."

Stenholm said he believes that the partisan rancor that characterized the 104th Congress will not be present in the 105th, particularly in the House Agriculture Committee.

"When we fight in the ag committee we don't have a chance to work for meaningful solutions. There's not enough congressmen with agricultural backgrounds to split along party lines."

Providing a safety net for family farmers is key to the actions that Congress must undertake in 1997, Stenholm said. He listed the necessity of an insurance program that protects not only against catastrophic losses, but also against market volatility. Recent grain and livestock markets have created a roller coaster ride for producers due to worldwide events that affect price margins.

Addressing the recent announcement that budget cuts may force the U.S. Department of Agriculture to close and consolidate hundreds of Farm Service Agency offices, Stenholm said, he believes that a one-stop shop for the FSA makes good sense. Stenholm chaired the committee that approved the original USDA reorganization plan in 1994.

"Given the technology that we have available, we shouldn't run the USDA that same way we have for 70 years," he said. "We have more than 200 Soil Conservation Districts where I'm from, and we don't need 200. Why can't we sit down and make a plan of local action to use the money that we have available to create a workable solution?"

Stenholm said he is staying optimistic but recognizes that farmers are a minority. Still, he urged Farmers Union members to be advocates for themselves and to continue their policital activism.

In policy development, the NFU board voted to join the newly-formed American Alliance for Honest Labeling (AAHL).

The alliance was formed to show public and producer support of a proposed U.S. Customs regulation to require printing foreign country-of-origin information in a prominent place on the front of individual frozen food packages.

Although current law requires all frozen produce to be clearly marked with country-of-origin labeling, many companies do not comply with the law.

AAHL recently released an independent study of more than 1,000 consumers which demonstrated that American consumers want to know the country in which their frozen produce was grown.

The survey showed that 83 percent of Americans never notice the label on frozen produce indicating where the vegetables are grown. The U.S. Customs regulation would make the country-of-origin labeling more prominent.

"Our members take great pride in growing the highest quality produce, and we work as an organization to support the integrity of their products in every way," said NFU President Leland Swenson in support of the decision to join AAHL.

In order to underscore the importance of the AAHL mission, each of the 19 state and regional Farmers Union organizations that make up National Farmers Union individually committed to joining the alliance.

"NFU policy supports providing as much information as possible to consumers about the products they are consuming," said Swenson. "This includes the country in which the produce is grown. We look forward to working with the alliance to ensure implementation of the U.S. Customs regulation."

With the NFU members, the AAHL now has some 800,000 members nationwide. For more information about AAHL or the Customs Service regulation, contact NFU or AAHL direction at 1-888-LABEL-YES.

National Farmers Union is a general farm organization representing nearly 300,000 family farmers and ranchers nationwide. NFU serves its membership by assisting with education programs, providing stimulus and know-how for producer-owned cooperatives and by presenting the organization's policies to lawmakers at the local, state and national levels.

Quality, well-tempered family horses are the most-prized product of Red Rose Paint Farms. The farm breeds colorful registered Paint horses, many the product of their stallion VR Master Tommy, who also stands to outside mares. Semen can be shipped or mares brought in for artificial insemination, and mare care is available. The farm's foals are born to paint, quarter horse and thoroughbred mares, and do well in halter futurity competition as well as under English or western tack. They are also well-suited for 4-H and as quiet trail mounts. The farm's trainers will work with those who purchase horses in order to ensure a smooth transition.

Owner Diane Eberly is stable manager and handles the breeding program and works with the foals. Daughter Allison Eberly trains the farm's horses for a variety of riding events and works with the horses being fitted for halter. Allison was named Reserve World's Champion in Youth Versatility and Hunt Seat in July, 1996 at the Paint World Show in Ft. Worth, TX. She also placed eighth in horsemanship, ninth in breakaway roping, and tenth in showmanship at the competition. She also stands in fifteenth place of the country's top twenty youth in American Paint Horse Association standings.

For the Open House, a discussion of conformation—what to look for in buying a horse, and how conformation affects performance—will be held Saturday at 11 am. Roping demonstrations by Mike Rhineer, Jr. will be held at 2 pm each day.

The farm also offers a number of post and rail fenced pastures on its 71 acres, along with individual paddocks.

In 1996—the farm's first year—Foal's Paradise stock earned an enviable number of championships. The farm's two year old filly, M. Ecloir, was the 1996 East Coast Breeder's Young Horse Champion at Dressage at Devon, and Young Horse Champion and Reserve Grand Champion at the Potomac Valley Dressage Association Sporthorse Breed Show. Lusindra, a three year old Dutch filly, was presented to the Dutch in October and earned "star mare" status, the premium award given to horses in her age group. Litigator, the four year old Dutch stallion, debuted under saddle with Olympic veteran Belinda Nairn in Florida this winter, and won at training level with an outstanding 69 percent, scoring nines for his gaits.

Foal's Paradise offers dressage lessons to horse owners on their own mounts. Trainer Richard Ellis has twenty years' experience and has trained and competed horses successfully to FEI levels. Ellis's low-key, informative style of instruction has earned him a loyal following. Ellis is assisted by Robin Stryker, a popular hunter/jumper instructor who also serves as the farm's event coordinator and media liaison. Stable manager Melanie Hollingsworth, who has a lifetime of experience with horses, rounds out the farm's staff.

The farm stands Litigator, by the internationally-recognized Dutch stallion Zeoliet, one of the top international producers of dressage horses. Litigator stands to outside mares by artificial insemination.

For the Open House, Foal's Paradise will feature a dressage demonstration at 10:30 am Saturday. Refreshments, videos, information and informal demonstrations will be ongoing throughout the weekend.

Greystone Manor
1061 Hartman Station Road
Lancaster, PA 17601
(717) 656-6688

In the 1960's and 1970's some of the most famous American Saddlebreds in the country—horses whose showring success and contribution to the gene pool continue to be celebrated today—called Greystone Manor home. Among the famous horses owners Mike and Ruth Stoltzfus owned and showed were the top breeding stallion, Chief of Greystone and Lady Talmadge. Their photos and many of the ribbons they won at venerable shows are still on display at the farm. Likewise, some of the most famous Saddlebred horse trainers of the century, including Wendell and Charlie Jones and Redd Crabtree trained as many as 72 Saddlebred show horses in the signature grey stone barn.

In 1972, thirteen horse vans pulled up to the gates and every horse and every piece of equipment was taken to Kentucky for dispersal. Saddlebreds were absent from Greystone for nearly 25 years, until May, 1996, when Jon and Linda Douglas became managers of the beautiful, historic facility.

The 95 acre farm has two barns, a large indoor arena and outdoor ring. The majority of the stalls are filled with boarders of all types. Dressage and western horses, hunters and the mounts used by the local therapeutic riding program all make use of the large pastures, ring, arena, wash facilities and full service care.

But just as success in the show ring was the focus at Greystone decades ago, so is it again today. A number of Saddlebred and Morgan show horses are in training at the farm. Manager/trainer Jon Douglas began his career with Saddlebreds at age 14, and worked for show stables in New England before coming to Pennsylvania to work for Alan Reber at Americana Stables. Jon met his wife and partner Linda at a horse show in Virginia when she worked for Jimmy Orphanos Stable. The couple's first show under the Greystone banner was Quentin Fall in 1996, and their horses did very well in three gaited, park, and pleasure classes.

Saddle seat riders and drivers headed for the show ring can take advantage of Greystone's training services, lessons, quality care, and show services, as Greystone will be traveling the show circuit come spring.

For the Open House, Greystone will give ongoing demonstrations of their show horses under saddle and in harness to music, and visitors are welcome to tour the elegant farm.

The pair specializes in carriage driving and Morgan horses, and have won more than 100 tri-colors in Morgan World Championship competition. They instructed the Reserve World Champion American Morgan Horse Association Youth winner, and have won championships in four in hand, tandem, pair, unicorn and single driving classes at the Devon Horse Show and the Canadian Royal Livestock Exhibition. Gene is a Morgan judge, a nationally-recognized driving instructor and president of the Pennsylvania Equine Council.

Lessons in saddle seat, hunt seat and western equitation, and in single, pair, tandem, and four in hand driving, combined driving, and pleasure driving are available. The farm's boarders have use of the indoor and outdoor arena and round pen. Stalls are cleaned and horses turned out daily.

Training Resources also stands a totally black, 16.1 hand Morgan stallion, Caduceus Nakai, to outside mares, with mare care available.

Vendors at Training Resources for the Open House include Colonial Concepts (carriage accessories), A & H Harness, Equine and Country Crafts, Mill Run Carriages, and the Pennsylvania Equine Council, which will have information on the state liability legislation and Pennsylvania trails and trail issues. Kenny Harlow will conduct round-pen clinics with problem horses both days. Saturday's demonstrations include nutrition at 10 am, hunt seat equitation at 11 am, equine massage at 11:30 am, saddle seat equitation at 12:30 pm, carriage pair driving at 1 pm, riding lesson demo at 1:30 pm, carriage single driving at 2:30 pm, and driving lesson demo at 3 pm.

Sheep Management Series

YORK (York Co.) — Area sheep producers are invited to attend at three evening sheep series planned for the Penn State Extension Office in York. This year's sheep management series will focus on three areas of importance to producers: pasture management including poisonous plants, sheep health and wool and lamb marketing.

York County Extension Agronomy agent John Rowehl wil discuss the fundamentals of pasture management at the first session. This will include improving pasture productivity and controlling weed problems. Setting up intensive grazing systems for sheep will also be discussed.

Dr. Bob Poppenga from the University of Pennsylvania Veterinary School will address the subject of plants poisonous to sheep at the second session. Many producers need information about ornamental and native plants that are safe around sheep pastures. Dr. Poppenga's expertise as a toxicologist will help producers gain a more complete understanding of this important topic. Penn State Specialist Clair Engle will talk about identifying, tying, showing and storing wool. He will review specialty markets for lamb and wool. Concluding remarks will deal with the disposal of dead sheep and sheep offal.

At the third session, Dr. Thomas Drake, Penn State Extension Veterinarian, will talk about sheep health. He will open the discussion with a review of sheep vaccines, their function, effectiveness and cost. He will also address ewe health topics such as: pregnancy testing, milk fever, mastitis, pneumonia and foot rot.

The workshop series will be held Thursday, March 13; Thursday, March 20 and Thursday, March 27 from 7 to 9 p.m. in meeting room 1 at the York County Extension Office. The office is located in the County Annex building on Pleasant Acres Road off Route 462 (Market Street) in East York. Cost for the workshop series is $5/farm operation.

Greenhouse Calf Barn Open House

DANVILLE (Montour Co.) — On Wednesday, March 19 there will be an Open House from 10 a.m. until noon at the greenhouse-style calf barn on the Bruce and Brenda Hemsarth farm, Millville in Columbia County.

The Open House is being held in conjunction with Penn State Cooperative Extension. Information will be available about greenhouse housing for dairy cattle.

The 30' x 70' barn was built by family and friends in November of last year. It has space for over 20 individual pens and a group pen for weaned calves.

Since moving into the calf barn, Bruce and Brenda have been very pleased with calf health and growth.

The barn features two layers of 6 mil plastic, with a white outer layer and clear inner layer. The sides roll up for good ventilation and the end walls are simply shade cloth which effectively breaks the wind while allowing air movement through the barn.

Calves are in 4' x 6' pens on top of a fabric that allows moisture to move through while keeping the bedding out of the layer of stone underneath.

State Grange Members To Meet With Federal Legislators

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Nearly 100 Pennsylvania State Grangers are to visit with their federal legislators during the annual Washington Legislative Tour to discuss issues concerning agriculture and rural affairs.

Among the issues to be discussed during the March 18-19 visit with United States congressmen and senators are dairy price reforms, clean air standards, Endangered Species Act, private property rights, capital gains tax relief, electric utility deregulation and rural health care.

The Pennsylvania State Grange, with over 31,000 members in 450 Grange chapters across the commonwealth, is dedicated to improving the lives of rural Pennsylvanians through legislative action, grass-roots initiatives, community service and offering member services like financial planning, a credit union and insurance programs.

Brenda Shambaugh, PA State Grange legislative director, said the Washington tour presents an opportunity for individual Grange members to voice their position on issues that have been developed through the Grange's grass-root efforts.

After nearly 60 years of federal farm programs, Congress enacted legislation that redefines the relationship between producers and the federal government through the 1996 Farm Bill.

However, considering the volatility dairy farmers have experienced over recent years, the Grange feels the federal government should continue to provide relief for dairy farmers.

The United States secretary of agriculture is required to phase out the dairy support program between 1996-99, and consolidate federal milk marketing orders from the current 32 to between 10 and 14.

The National Grange supports the idea of consolidating milk marketing orders as long as it has a positive net impact on dairy farmers. The Grange also wants to see a safety-net or floor price established for the Basic Formula Price (BFP), as well as a reduction in the influence of the National Cheese Exchange in calculating the BFP.

"Pricing reform should be based on sound, economic analysis of the effects of the pricing provisions," Shambaugh said. "Pricing provisions should ensure the availability of milk for fluid consumption, in the most effective manner, and should encourage efficient allocation of resources."

The Grange supports changes in the current pricing series used for determining the price of manufacturing milk with a system that accurately reflects the economic value of manufacturing milk and is representative of dairy production costs around the country.

On another issue that could adversely affect the profitability of the agriculture industry, the Grange opposes the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) plan to revise the National Ambient Air Quality Standards for two air pollutants: ozone and particulate matter (PM).

The new, tighter standards would create non-attainment zones across the country and subject a greater number of farms and ranches to air quality regulation. Dairies would also be affected and be tested for ammonia, dust, fuel combustion and diesel emissions.

"Since fuel and energy costs are the third largest non-agricultural input supply expense for American farmers," Shambaugh said, "the profitability of many crops will be dramatically influenced by motor fuel and electricity prices."

Other key issues to be discussed in Washington include:

Endangered Species Act - Signed into law in 1972, the act was written to protect species like the bald eagle and the manatee. Subsequent reauthorization and legal decisions have expanded the law tremendously.

Farmers face fines and imprisonment for even the most basic farm practices if federal officials believe those practices disturb endangered species. Farmers have faced loss of land, which isn't compensated by the government.

"The National Grange feels that true reform will include a balance between species protection and fair treatment to the landowner," Shambaugh said. "Any legislation should include using an economic impact analysis, and sound scientific research, and that limits be placed on expenditures for studies and recovery plans."

Private Property Rights - The Grange is asking their legislators to support the Private Property Rights Act, according to Shambaugh.

"This bill would require the federal government to compensate property owners for regulatory "takings" of their land," Shambaugh said.

"Grange policy is quite clear on this issue: If the government 'takes' your land, then you have the unalienable right to be compensated for your losses."

Capital Gains Tax Relief - Capital gains tax hurts agriculture and other businesses that invest in property and equipment by imposing a penalty when assets are shifted from one use to another.

The tax discourages farmers from selling less valued assets and reinvesting the proceeds in more productive activities needed to keep their business growing and their operations competitive.

Most capital gains in agriculture result from inflation, Shambaugh said.

With the average length of time that farmland is held being at 28 years, the overall price level in the United States quadruples due to inflation. As a result, farmers pay huge capital gains tax bills in inflated rather than real increases in the value of their investments.

The National Grange supports a reform in capital gains taxes which would allow a 50-percent reduction in capital gains, making the effective rate 7.5 percent for those in the 15-percent bracket, 14 percent for the 28-percent bracket and 19.8 percent for the 39.6 percentile.

Electric Utility Deregulation - Over the past several months, competition in the electric utility business is taking on a rebirth. Cities and towns are taking a renewed interest in their options and powers.

It is clear that Congress will move toward deregulating the electric utility industry in the coming months. (Similar legislation has already been passed by the Pennsylvania General Assembly.)

So far, some deregulation proposals put forth have promoted federally mandated retail wheeling, which does not bode well for rural electric consumers. Rural electric co-ops were created to provide an essential service at cost because no one wanted to or would, and they comply with the spirit of the mission of the Rural Electrification Act by providing electric service to everyone in their service territories within economic reasonability.

"It is because of this unique perspective on the provision of electric service that rural electric consumers' vision of the industry's future may differ somewhat from that of other sectors of the industry," Shambaugh said.

The Grange feels any retail wheeling proposal should include the following: all classes of consumers should be treated fairly; all consumers should have access to electric service; and safety and reliability must not be jeopardized.

Rural Health Care - Because rural people are more likely than urban citizens to be enrolled in Medicare (28 percent higher), rural enrollees receive lower average Medicare payments than urbanites.

Therefore, a "one size fits all" reform policy will not work for rural Medicare recipients. Other rural health care issues like doctor shortages, availability of emergency care and rural hospitals in danger of closing need to be addressed.

"Our position is centered around one theme," Shambaugh said. "Any Medicare reform proposal must take into account the unique needs of rural hospitals, doctors and Medicare recipients."

Included in the trek to the nation's capital are a congressional luncheon with legislators, a meeting with Pennsylvania's senators, House and Senate Ag Committee staff members and USDA officials and tours of the Holocaust and U.S. Postal museums and National Grange headquarters.

Addison Co-Op Holds Annual Meeting

ADDISON, N.Y. — Addison Milk Producers Cooperative recently held their annual meeting at the United Methodist Church in Addison, N.Y.

The members filled the social rooms and enjoyed a turkey dinner prepared by the church members.

Robert Nichols, Addison, president of the Cooperative, spoke briefly about the increased interest in Addison's quality market evidenced by the increased membership this past year. Addison Co-op has had consistent growth over the past five years. Nichols strongly urged the members to recommend to their neighbor dairy farmers that they join Addison Co-op and enjoy the benefits of the market. The Co-op has the strongest milk market in Steuben County.

James Patsos of United Ag Services, Seneca Falls, N.Y., presented quality awards to the top quality producers this past year.

Recipients were Bruce Payne, Greenwood, first; Dean and Betty Bieber, Prattsburg, second; Robert and Valerie Button, Jasper, third; and Charles Stewart, Addison, fourth.

United recognizes the top quality producers in each of its members cooperatives every year. Following the presentation of awards, Patsos discussed market conditions and what dairy farmers may expect in 1997.

1996 was a very unusual year with slightly better prices than 1995. However, increases in milk prices were partially offset by high grain prices. Patsos then fielded questions from the Co-op members.

Hubert "Zeke" Dininny, treasurer, distributed patronage dividend checks to the members present. Addision Co-op has paid a patronage dividend each year at their annual meeting.

Officers elected for 1997 were Robert Nichols, president; Harold Knowles Jr., Campbell, vice-president; Hubert Dininny, Addison, treasurer; and Philip Marsh, Jasper, secretary. Directors are Robert Button, Jasper; Loren Smith, Painted Post; and Tom Lyons Jr., Corning.

Dairy farmers in Steuben County that produce quality milk are invited to call one of the officers or directors to get further information about joining the co-op or they can call United Ag Services office at 1 (800) 326-4251.

Addison Milk Producers Cooperative is a member of United Ag Services, a membership cooperative providing marketing, management, quality control, accounting, and payroll services for small to medium sized agricultural organizations and individual farmers in New York and Pennsylvania. They can be reached at 1 (800) 326-4251 or (315) 568-2750.

PFB Members Talk To U.S. Legislators

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Farmers took many important issues to Washington, D.C. during Pennsylvania Farm Bureau's (PFB) annual visit with their congressmen in the nation's capital March 5 and 6.

Over 200 farmers from PFB's 54 county farm bureaus met with their United States congressmen and senators to discuss issues ranging from estate and capital gains tax relief to USDA's budget.

But in the eyes of dairy farmer Harold Moyer of Wyalusing, Bradford County, and others from northeastern Pennsylvania, the recent plunge in milk prices was a dominant concern.

"Dairy was definitely on the agenda for Pennsylvania Farm Bureau's Washington Tour," said Moyer, a dairyman and a member of PFB's Dairy Advisory Committee. "We needed to talk about it with our congressmen and we did."

Moyer is a member of a county farm bureau national legislative committee and serves as PFB's spokesman in dealing with Rep. Joseph McDade (R-10th Dist.).

"We encouraged Congressman McDade to contact USDA Secretary Glickman on the need for decisive action on our milk price concerns." Other county farm bureau delegations also discussed the issue with their congressmen.

Pennsylvania Farm Bureau is seeking the following action by USDA:

- Continued promotion of dairy product use in both domestic feeding and foreign aid programs.
- Continued use of the Dairy Export Incentive Program to the maximum extent allowed by law to stimulate exports.
- Expansion of the proposed consolidated Northeast Federal Milk Marketing Order to include all currently unregulated areas in Pennsylvania.
- Maintaining, or maybe even increasing, the current Class I differentials in the new, expanded federal order.
- Developing a new method for discovering the Class III price for dairy products including cheese and butter.

In the light of controversy over activities of the National Cheese Exchange in Green Bay, Wisconsin, Farm Bureau is concerned about the influence current Class III pricing is having on dairymen. Farm Bureau supports incorporating the following concepts as USDA revises the Basic Formula Price for milk.

- Decouple Class I prices from the Class III price and use a rolling average to prevent extreme price fluctuations.
- Do away with the pricing component from the National Cheese Exchange if there is a suitable alternative to replace it. Options may include moving the National Cheese Exchange to the Chicago Mercantile Exchange or to New York's Coffee, Sugar and Cocoa Exchange which are under government oversight through the Commodity Futures Trading Commission.

Elinate "pass through" provisions for federal orders to restrict opportunistic pooling and depooling which disrupts milk marketing.

Implement the most efficient, least cost, market clearing alternative on an order-by-order basis.

As for immediate action, "USDA needs to get moving on federal order reform including revising how the Basic Formula Price is determined," Moyer emphasized. "They're already three months behind their own schedule."

Congress has set a Jan. 1, 1999 deadline for USDA to consolidate the nation's 32 federal milk marketing orders into 10 to 14 orders.

"USDA needs to get back on track so farm groups and dairy cooperatives have enough time to evaluate proposed changes for federal orders and milk pricing," Moyer said.

PFB policy also states that the United States needs to get Canada back to the negotiating table to reopen talks on NAFTA, the North American Free Trade Agreement.

Canadian tariffs of 300 percent have put a halt to dairy exports into that country. "That's not free trade. We need to get Canada back to the bargaining table to correct the situation," Moyer said.

Noting that a number of bills and resolutions have been introduced in Congress on dairy issues, Moyer said dairymen need help now.

"The price of milk is going back up, but we haven't yet seen it at the farm yet. Farm Bureau wants to make sure Congress knows how serious the situation is and that we have some recommendations for positive action," Moyer said.

PFB leaders discussed several other issues in Washington which could have a strong positive impact on the family farm.

Farm Bureau urged support for two bills, H.R. 14 and S. 66, which would cut the capital gains tax in half.

"We have a real good chance to get the capital gains tax reduced this session," said Moyer. "Everybody in Washington is talking about it — the Republicans, Democrats and the President — which is a hopeful sign that action will be taken."

Farm Bureau members also sought support for an increase in the estate tax or "death tax" exemption from the current $600,000 level to $2 million.

"This unfair tax on gains which are mostly inflationoary often causes the family farm to be split up to pay the tax bill rather than being passed on the next generation," Moyer said.

In addition, Farm Bureau members called on their congressmen to oppose further cuts in the U.S. Department of Agriculture's budget.

A letter opposing USDA budget cuts is being circulated by Rep. Robert Smith (R-Ore.), chairman of the U.S. House Agriculture Committee, and the ranking minority member Rep. Charles Stenholm (D-Texas).

"Agriculture has taken more than its fair share of budget cuts over the last several years," Moyer said. "If other agencies had done the same we wouldn't have a budget deficit today."

Pennsylvania Farm Bureau is an independent, statewide organization which represents 26,625 farm and rural residents.

Phila. Flower Show Visitors Get Sneak Peek At Spring

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

PHILADELPHIA — Visitors to this year's Philadelphia Flower Show were transported to a variety of places: a flourishing tulip garden somewhere in Holland, a butterfly grotto, a spunky "rubber tire waterfall," even a New York City skyline apartment where King Kong reaches in to grab a vase.

They didn't have to travel very far: a short distance away from an 8-foot arbor garden on the floor of the converted-to- spring downtown Convention Center was the majestic polished pewter globe mounted with people of all lands and suspended 27 feet overhead. The sculpture rested atop a massive reflecting pool and beckoned visitors to a display staged by The Women's Ikebana Society of Japan.

Down the way from the virtual "sea" of multicolored tulips was the Tyre Waterfall, nicknamed Tyres By Styers from a nursery in Concordville.

The show this year fit the theme "The Great Exchange: People, Places, and Plants." You didn't have to walk far with the thousands of visitors to see lots of things that would be hard to find anywhere in central or southeastern Pennsylvania:

• Flower bulbs of many kind were arranged in an island imported from Holland. The design included 50,000 flowers (80 varieties of tulips alone), hyacinths, daffodils, and other flowers from the International Flower Bulb Center, Hillegam, Netherlands. Of course, included was a 400-year-old thatched windmill.

• A "Child's First Garden" display provided by the Hort Academy and Abraham Lincoln High School, Philadelphia, included all sorts of plants and arrangements among the play blocks.

• A butterfly exhibit was arranged by the Zoological Society of Philadelphia which included information about the life cycle of a butterfly.

• A tire waterfall exhibit was entitled Tyres By Styers and included other items of "junk" transformed into garden beauty (did we mention the use of a shopping cart as part of a garden?). The display was constructed by J. Franklin Styer Nurseries in Concordville.

• The Italian region of Liguria, known worldwide for its cut flowers, was captured on a Genoa hillside filled with arrangements by designers Mimma and Aldo Alberti and the International Trade Center. From Belgium, traditional and contemporary flower arranging styles were portrayed by the Belgian Flower Arranging Society.

For visitors looking for imaginative gardening decorating ideas, there was plenty of time to get out the camera and the notebook and inspect the work by gardening professionals. Some of the noteworthy items on display included:

• A corner bed fashioned by F.A. Bartlett Tree Expert Company, Stamford, Ct. The centerpiece of the bed included a flowering white dogwood. The top crown of flowers included violet Roseum Elegans Rhododendrons. The bottom crown included ruby red Lavender impatiens.

• A flowerbed created by Stoney Brook Nursery in Glen Mills featured a centerpiece of a white latticed perch holding a simple bird house. The bed featured an Ever Red Japanese Maple. The

"Three Maypoles and a Maiden" was a joint exhibit by the Williamson Free School of Mechanical Trades, Media, and The Pershore College of Horticulture, Pershore, Worcestershire, England. One fine piece of the display included a corner bed/stone wall with a center of pink Hybrid Rhododendrons and bottomed by Hardy Geranium Plantainlily, centered by an evergreen.

Tulips and hyacinths were the most common flowers throughout the show. One included a raised bed of tulips, Christmas Dream Tulips in silver pink and below them, China Pink hyacinths that were frosty pink and fragrant.

Flower bulbs of many kind were arranged in an island imported from Holland. The design included 50,000 flowers (80 varieties of tulips alone), hyacinths, daffodils, and other flowers from the International Flower Bulb Center, Hillegam, Netherlands. Of course, included was a 400-year-old thatched windmill.

Stoney Brook also had a simple birdbath flower bed featured a pea green, sundial-type bath surrounded with Husker's Red Digitalis and lots of Hosta (plantain lily).

A tire waterfall exhibit was entitled Tyres By Styers and included other items of "junk" transformed into garden beauty (did we mention the use of a shopping cart as part of a garden?). The display was constructed by J. Franklin Styer Nurseries in Concordville.

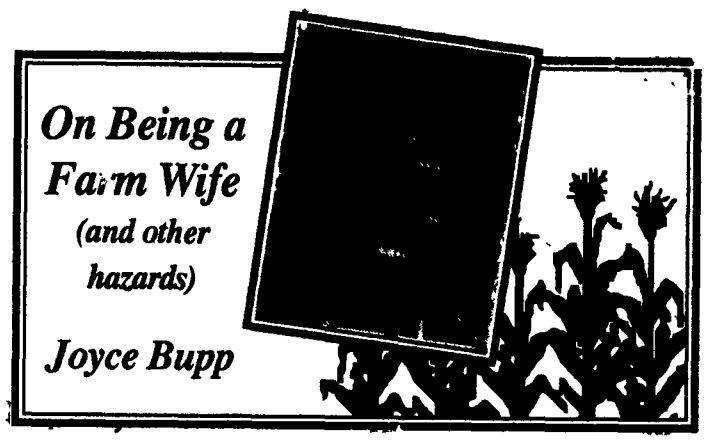
MUELLER®

THE MILK COOLING SYSTEMS SPECIALISTS

©1996 Paul Mueller Company 248



From the farm office I can see them up on the hill above the house.

At first glance they would appear to be white dots, moving about erratically across the brown and greenish fields that sweep around the hillside. A closer look reveals the telltale shape of birds, swooping from place to place, launching themselves up into the air, then gently settling down a short distance away.

Some move about in groups, clusters of three or four, or larger gatherings of perhaps two or three dozen. Others putter about by themselves, each apparently perfectly happy doing its own thing.

The appearance of the seagulls has always been one of those farm mysteries. We won't see them for weeks, months, at a time. But let someone haul out a single load of manure or till one small stretch of ground and these flocks of graceful white birds swoop down so promptly you would think they'd been watching our every move from the neighborhood rooftops.

Growing up, I don't ever remember seeing a seagull anywhere except near the beach or a major river visited on our family vacations. The first time, a year ago, that they descended to a stretch of freshly-turned ground was a major surprise.

The Farmer still recalls how the first flock he remembers visiting here — about 1964 — swept in over his head while he was spring plowing with one of our early John Deere tractors. It was such a spectacle and surprise that he halted plowing, returned to the house and hauled out the camera to document the flock's appearance.

And though we still tremendously enjoy seeing the seagulls, their visits are so routine we would never give a second thought to snapping photos of them.

While seagulls are perfectly capable of catching their dinners somewhere over the water, they are blatant opportunists. In fact, one of the places it seems that gulls haunt most heavily in inland areas are landfills, with their rich possibilities of edibles.

Nor is it unusual to see some of the more brazen of the flocks puttering about the parking lot of fast food establishments, just waiting to nab a couple of french fries — or whatever — that might tumble from some snackers' overflowing food containers.

Of course, the couple hundred seagulls that have moved onto the fields for the past several days are not scarfing down lost french fries or bits of hamburger bun. More than likely, their current diet leans heavily toward protein, laden with delicacies like the fat earthworms that wiggle up out of the ground when liquid manure is applied to the fields.

Added to the seagull field buffet may be succulent grubs, assorted small bugs of this early season and bits of grain recycled onto the fields with the hauling of cattle waste.

While the seagulls strut about the fields selecting lunch tibdits, other feathered species line up outside the back door.

Even before dawn had properly broken, the cardinals' plaintive calls were chiding me about the lack of feed. And on the back porch feeder perched a mourning dove, patiently waiting for the sunflower stash to be refilled.

Awash in guilt, I slipped on a jacket and made rounds, scattering seed around the cardinals' favored cotoneaster bush and under the forsythia where the white-capped sparrows like to scratch in the leaf litter. A quick trip up the ladder replenished a feeder high up on the maple tree and replaced the empty ear of corn that the squirrels had been complaining about.

While our bird feeders have fewer regulars this mild and open winter, the ones that are here demand not to be forgotten.

If our hundred or two visiting seagulls ever start lining up outside the window, demanding that we haul manure and plow, we're in trouble.

Mr. Food's Grilled Cheese To Rescue Recipe Contest

(NAPS) — Grilled cheese sandwiches are more in fashion today that ever before. Today's trendiest restaurants are serving them and Americans are eating them up to prove it. That's why Art Ginsburg, star of the nationally syndicated "Mr. Food®" television show, and the American Dairy Association are teaming up to host a national contest to find the country's most creative and best tasting grilled cheese sandwiches.

The grand prize winner will receive $5,000 and a trip for two to Fort Lauderdale, Florida to see a taping of "Mr. Food." Four runners-up will receive $1,000 and a set of Mr. Food cookbooks.

According to a recent survey conducted by the American Dairy Association, approximately 83 percent of Americans are grilled cheese eaters. No longer, however, is the grilled cheese sandwich limited to just two slices of American cheese on white bread. In fact, the survey found that on today's grilled cheese sandwich anything goes. Cheese is to versatile that any combination you choose will have family and friends lining up for seconds. From jalepeno peppers and Gouda to bacon and Pepper-Jack, the ingredients are endless.

To enter Mr. Food's contest, simply send your original recipe entry to: "Mr. Food®'s Grilled Cheese to the Rescue" Recipe Contest, P.O. Box 81560, Chicago, IL 81560-0560. Each entry must contain the contestant's name, complete address, phone number and age. Recipes must consist of five ingredients or less and use only domestic (U.S. produced) cheeses. The contest is open to adults ages 18 and older. All recipe entries must be received by March 21, 997.

For the official contest rules, please send a self-addressed stamped envelope to: "Mr. Food's Grilled Cheese to the Rescue" Official Contest Rules, P.O. Box 81560, Chicago, IL 81560-0560.

For inspiration, try Mr. Food's tantalizing California Grill recipe:

California Grill

8 slices sourdough bread
½ cup guacamole
1 container (8 ounces) alfalfa sprouts
1 medium-sized tomato, cut into 8 slices
12 slices (12 ounces) White Cheddar cheese
Softened butter

Assemble sandwiches by layering 4 slices of bread with guacamole, alfalfa sprouts, 2 tomato slices, 3 slices of cheese and another slice of bread. Butter both sides of the sandwiches and cook over medium-low heat in a skillet for 3-4 minutes per side, or until cheese is melted and the bread is golden brown. Makes 4 sandwiches.

Pruning:
The Formative Years

This is the third in a series of articles on pruning fruit trees ... Properly pruned fruit trees develop a strong, well-balanced framework that produces more fruit.

The first year or two of a tree's existence in an orchard is spent mostly in training the trees making sure a strong framework is developed. The next period can be considered the "formative years." These are the years when the growth is directed to insure proper structure develops. The intervention most frequently takes the form of limited pruning and training.

Scaffold selection occurs during the first one or two years. In most training systems the first scaffold should not be any lower than 18 to 20 inches above the ground. Thereafter shoots should be selected so that they are placed about 4 to 8 inches apart vertically and well distributed around the trunk.

The major mistake that gardeners often make in the formative years is allowing the top of the tree to develop too soon. The result is that the tree develops a 'sail' top and can be blown over and the lower limbs do not develop sufficiently. The natural tendency for trees is that the top will develop sooner and to a greater extent because this is the most vigorous area of the tree and is exposed to the highest light levels. One rule of thumb to apply to this area of the tree is the "½ to ⅔ rule." When branches of the central axis are between ½ to ⅔ the diameter of the central axis, they should be removed.

With some cultivars, the dominance of the central leader may disappear. This can happen either due to over cropping or by allowing too many limbs to develop from one area. In some instances then it is necessary to re-head the leader back to invigorate it.

One exception in the rule of reduced pruning occurs with spur type Delicious. It is not unusual that trees fail to form sufficient number or quality of scaffold limbs the year of planting. In this case it is necessary to cut back the tree severely. This is accomplished by heading the central leader back to an inch or two above where you headed the tree last year. The side limbs that did grow are also cut back until using what is commonly called a Dutch or bevel cut. By drastically reducing the top of the tree you invigorate the tree and encourage greater growth. The Dutch cut is made to force new scaffolds to develop on the underside of the original shoot having a naturally wider angle. The disadvantage to this system is a delay in the early bearing by one year.

Once the initial lower framework and tree structure is established then pruning during the early bearing years is a matter of annual pruning to insure good sunlight exposure and to develop a series of tiers of branching structures. As you move progressively up in the tree each tier should get shorter and weaker.

Be careful in not allowing the tree tops to become too large too soon in the life of the tree. The natural tendency is to make fewer cuts in the tops of the trees because it is more difficult to reach them.

On mature trees, each year, you should remove one or two large limbs. A few large cuts in the top of the tree are better than more numerous small cuts. Remember that the light environment is always best in the top of the tree so fruit quality and quantity will be greatest regardless of what you do. Prune the top so that light penetrates down into the interior and lower areas of the tree.

"This session will help these students prepare for the change to the University Park Campus," Fivek said.

To help increase diversity in the student body, an information session will be held for minority students at 2:15 a.m. in 118 ASI Building. At the same time, a panel discussion on women in the agricultural sciences will be held in 101 ASI Building. "Current students, faculty members, and alumni of the college will discuss their experiences in the Univeristy and in their careers," said Fivek.

Lemon juice is a multidimensional flavor enhancer . . . it can even be used in some favorite beef dishes. (And you thought it was only good for sweetening water or making lemonade.)

The following recipe from the National Beef Cookoff Program won the 1995 Grand Prize "Best of Beef" and makes use of fresh lemon juice in a big way for some mouth-watering ribeyes.

GRECIAN SKILLET RIBEYES

Total preparation and cooking time 25 minutes.

2 well-trimmmed beef ribeye steaks, cut 1 inch thick (approx. 1 pound).
1 tablespoon olive oil
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
2 tablespoons crumbled feta cheese
1 tablespoon chopped, pitted Kalamata or ripe olives.
Seasoning:
1½ teaspoons garlic powder
1½ teaspoons dried basil leaves, crushed
1½ teaspoons dried oregano leaves, crushed
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Combine seasoning ingredients and press into both sides of beef steaks. In large nonstick skillet, heat oil over medium heat until hot. Place steaks in skillet. Cook approximately 10-14 minutes for medium rare to medium donenesss, turning once. Sprinkle with lemon juice.

To serve, sprinkle cheese and olives over steaks and garnish as desired. Makes 2-4 servings (serving size ½ to ¼ of recipe).

Cook's tip: recipe may be doubled.

Sometimes we receive numerous answers to the same request, and cannot print each one.

QUESTION — Dave Hartley of Richfield is looking for a recipe for red candy apples on a stick like the ones sold at carnivals.

QUESTION — Eunice Musselman of Fredericksburg is looking for a recipe for chicken monterey similar to that served at Bonanza Restaurants.

QUESTION — Gladys Schoffer, Shermansdale, indicated she loves the spaghetti sauce seasoning made by House of Herbs, Passaic, N.J., but she noted they no longer make it. Spaghetti is really flat without some kind of seasoning, according to Gladys, and wants to know if anyone has a spaghetti seasoning they can recommend similar to the sauce from House of Herbs.

QUESTION — Kathie J. Comly, Bellefonte, wants recipes on quick breads for bread machines and any recipes for pierogies.

QUESTION — Robert Lloyd, Woodbury Heights, N.J., wrote to us and indicated he is looking for a Pork Pie recipe. Robert noted that, when he was a boy in Philadelphia in the 1930s, his mother, who was from England, used to buy pork pies at a store that sold British specialties. They were individual deep-dish pies with crusts and pork and a gelatine-type mixture, eaten cold.

QUESTION — Diane Snyder, Rebuck, wants to know if anyone has a recipe to make Fruit Leathers from pureed fruits similar to Fruit By The Foot.

QUESTION — Carl Schintzel, Rockaway, N.J., is looking for a recipe of a baked dish his mother used to make. The dish has flat noodles layered with chopped ham and buttered bread crumbs with a cheese or cream sauce. It also had a top layer of bread crumbs and was baked. He believes it could be called a Ham Noodle Casserole.

QUESTION — Elsie Shirk, Ephrata, would like a recipe for cherry or blueberry pie filling that tastes similar to the store-bought canned varieties.

QUESTION — Joanne Lomas; Morgantown, writes that when she was a little girl growing up in Philadelphia, her parents used to get a wonderful bread from a Lithuanian Bakery (she thinks). The bread crust was very dark and shiny and the inside was moist, sour, and gray in color. It was delicious. Does anyone have a recipe for such a loaf?

QUESTION — Pat Elligson, Millers, Md., would like a recipe for a cabbage slaw that is cooked and combined with a yellow cooked dressing that is very creamy. She thinks her mother used a Pa. Dutch recipe to make it.

QUESTION — Shirley Schwoerer, Wysox, would like a recipe to make Danish or puff pastry using a food processor.

QUESTION — The Greene Co. New York Dairy Princess wants recipes for fudge in the following flavors: coffee, cranberry, and raspberry. She purchased these flavors at the Pa. Farm Show.

QUESTION — Helen Hertzler of Morgantown asks what causes muffin batter to bake around the outside first and then push up through the top, forming strange-looking growths and then baking firm.

QUESTION — Ann Harner, Gettysburg, would like a recipe for English muffins made in a bread machine.

QUESTION — Charlene Bennett, Cleanville, would like to know if cheese balls and cream cheese may be frozen. Also, how long may homemade fudge and other chocolate candies be frozen?

ANSWER — Joan Miller, Intercourse, wanted a recipe to make rice pudding using leftover cooked rice and made on top of the stove, not in the oven. Recipes were provided by Betty Light and Susan Schubert. The following from Schubert:

STOVETOP RICE PUDDING

¾ cup rice
½ gallon milk

Cook over medium heat until mixture boils and becomes thickened (stir until boiling) about 45 minutes. Add raisins. Meanwhile, in a large bowl, blend:

2 eggs
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon vanilla

Add rice mixture, blend. Top with cinnamon.

ANSWER — A reader wanted healthful bread recipes to make in a bread machine. The reader wanted to know: is it possible to make bread machine bread without white flour? She prefers oat flour, which doesn't have enough gluten in it to raise sufficiently.

Thanks to Dennis and Deanna Cunfer of Never Done Farm, Lehighton, for the following information:

Gluten can be bought at health food or gourmet kitchen stores. It is added to oat, rye, and what flours to aid in the rising of the breads. There are always many recipes for breads made from flour other than white in cookbooks dedicated to bread machines.

ANSWER — Ann Harner, Gettysburg, wanted a recipe to make homemade yogurt in a yogurt maker. Thanks to Lois Martin, Shippensburg, for Basic Yogurt.

BASIC YOGURT

1 quart milk
⅓ cup dry milk
2 tablespoons yogurt (plain) with acidophilus cultures

In a saucepan, mix milk with dry milk. Bring almost to boil. Remove from heat and cool to 110 degrees. Skim skin off top and stir in yogurt.

Incubate for 8-10 hours. Refrigerate.

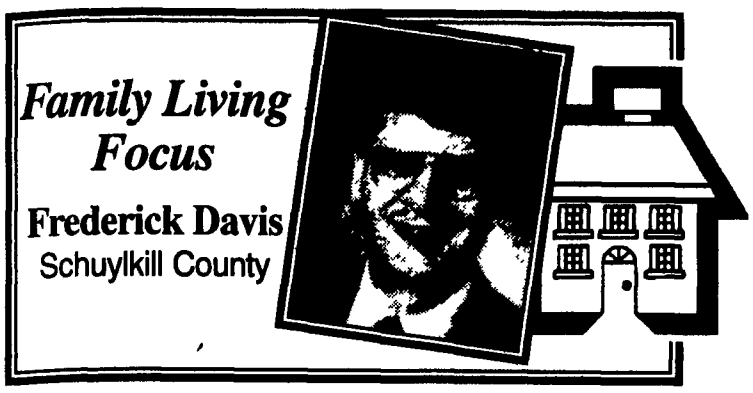
COOPERATIVES
MEETING PEOPLE'S NEEDS



Fraud and scams are growing at epidemic proportions in the United States. Seventy-five percent of the reported cases have been directed at the elderly, due to their vulnerability as residents in older homes and the need for medical solutions. One bad decision can jeopardize the financial well-being and/or health of any person who becomes a victim of deception. Here are some tips to help you recognize when someone is trying to scam you and what measures you can take to avoid becoming a victim.

Telephone Scams — Resist high pressure sales tactics. Legitimate businesses respect the fact that you are not interested. If you agree to a purchase due to pressure selling but did not initiate the contact, you have three working days to back out of the contract. Better to resist now than try to right a wrong later. Hang up if you are told you have won a prize but need to pay for part of it like a 900 telephone call or shipping and handling fees. Remember, free is free!

Most of these scam artists make their money from the pay calls and processing fees. Don't send money by courier, overnight delivery or wire to anyone who insists on immediate payment. If you don't want the seller to call you back, say so. If they do call back, hang up. They are breaking the law. If you are uncertain about the offer, ask for written information that includes the offer, the offering company and an address and phone number. Legitimate companies will be happy to give you that information. Hang up if a telemarketer calls before 8 a.m. or after 9 p.m.

Financial Opportunities — Be wary of persons who have a "hot" tip on a particular investment opportunity, particularly in precious metals, commodities futures and "penny" stocks. Never invest in anything you don't fully understand. Unscrupulous financial marketers use smooth talk, claims of extraordinary returns, and financial performance well beyond normal expectations. Remember, if it sounds too good to be true, is probably is! Never agree to do business with someone that refuses to meet with you face to face or only gives you a post office box address for mailing. Money sent to these people is usually lost money and you will have little or no recourse to get it back.

Pyramid Schemes (Chain Letters and Ponzi) — These activities are illegal. The only persons that get rich from these schemes are the ones who initiate it. Everyone else becomes a victim.

Giving a Credit Card or Bank Account Number — Never give your social security card number, credit card numbers, bank account numbers or long distance calling card numbers to stangers, or persons who initiate a call to you. Electronic accessing has made this type of scam very profitable to con artists. Give numbers out only if you initiate the call to buy goods or services over the phone, and then only the information they need to have. Do not volunteer additional information unless asked for. Protect your accounts as if it were cash. It is also important to tell children or any other person living in your household never to give financial informaition to callers.

Health Frauds — Be very wary of any medical products that have unusual claims for cures not accepted as good medical practice. A disturbing number of Americans seem to be entrusting their health care to unqualified individuals and buying unproven and sometimes dangerous remedies from them. Quack promoters have learned to stay ahead of the law by moving from state to state and by changing their corporate names. Remember, if a product is as good as it is promoted to be, most likely the established medical community would have already endorsed it — if not — look out! Because many people are desperate for a cure after having all other possibilities exhausted, the following medical conditions are especially susceptible to quackery — arthritis, cancer, AIDS, weight loss, sexual aids, and baldness.

Home Repairs — With Spring just around the corner, home improvements and repairs may soon be on your mind and also on the mind of rip-off artists! Complaints abound on cost overruns, missed deadlines, shoddy workmanship, poor quality products used, and deposits made which disappear along with the workmen before finishing or starting the work.

Be wary of fly-by-night home improvement outfits which arrive in an unmarked truck, refuse to give you a written estimate, use high pressure sales tactics, promise to use your home as a "demonstration model" at a reduced price, and promise a cut-rate job because they had left-over material from a job they just finished in your area.

Do use local, well-established contractors. Get recommendations from a friend or neighbor. Get more than on estimate and get it in writing. Never pay a contractor the entire amount of the job before he does any work. Be sure that your contractor has liability insurance. For information on complaints about your contractor, contact the state Better Business Bureau at 900-CALL-BBB ($.95 a minute).

For More Information — Contact the National Fraud Information Center at 1-800-876-7060, or the Office of the Attorney General, Bureau of Consumer Protection Regional Office, 132 Kline Village, Harrisburg, PA 17104, (717) 787-7109 for assistance and/or a copy of their Consumer Protection Booklet.

Show Draws Kids To Secrets Of Butterflies, Giant's Garden

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

PHILADELPHIA — Can you picture a "miniature" Giant's Garden?

Is that really the arm of King Kong reaching through the window into the highrise apartment to grab the pretty, delicate vase of flowers?

And what about that big butterfly up there, soaring into the overhead lights: is that for real?

Children who visited the Philadelphia Flower Show last week had a chance to find the answers to all these mysteries. The answers to the enchanting lifecycle of butterflies were revealed; the King Kong replica was indeed surprising, almost frightening; and Jack didn't climb down the beanstalk, but so many kids who visited surely wanted to try.

The replica of Jack and the Beanstalk was presented by the Camden City Garden Club to promote the Camden Children's Garden, a real garden were children are encouraged to touch, taste, smell, and experience nature.

The garden will be a special place to explore and discover the natural world. When finished, the three-acre garden will be located next to the New Jersey Aquarium and be part of the attractions at the Camden waterfront.

"Bert" of Sesame Street even paid a visit — sort of. He came in the form of an ivy plant in The Ivy Patch by the American Ivy Society.

Consuming Thoughts

A nutritious Easter basket can offers an exciting alternative to the traditional basket of high sugar foods such as chocolate bunnies, marshmallow chicks and jelly beans. Try including familiar finger foods your child likes as well as new and interesting foods which provide a higher ratio of nutrients to calories than candy. Suprisingly, it can be cheaper to use toys and nutritious food than to fill a basket with candy.

Some more nutritious food items that would be nice to include are seeds for sprouting or eating, fresh fruits, fruit juices in small cans/cartons, cheese "kisses" or cheese wedges, cereal in individual boxes, dried fruits, popcorn, pudding, bred and muffin mixes, unsalted nuts, and assorted breads, cookies and crackers!

An Easter basket can also provide a meaningful learning experience for a child. It offers the opportunity to teach children about the coming of spring, farm animals and gardening. You can also share the joy of giving by preparing baskets for family and friends.

Here are a few ideas to get you started: Instead of using baskets as the container, try substituting plastic containers, tin cans, milk cartons, sand pails, shoe boxes, flower pots and other containers. Fill them with books on food, gardening, fishing, etc., puzzles with fruit/vegetable pictures or farm scenes, toothbrush and paste, pad, crayons, scissors, realistic farm animals, balls, small toys, fresh flowers or plants or homemade games.

Try themes for baskets such as:

•Gardening: seed pots, seeds, small trowel, toy tractor, book on gardening.

•Easter breakfast: small box of unsweetened cereal or pancake mix, muffin mix, juice, dried fruits and a book about "The Little Red Hen."

•Gingerbread man: book on the gingerbread man, gingerbread mix, gingerbread cookie cutter, raisins, home-made puzzle, small can of apple juice.

•Seeds: sunflower seeds to grow and eat or pumpkin seeds, book about seeds, sesame seed crackers, gardening tools, planter pots.

•Grandchildren Basket: Easter is an ideal time for grandparents to give an heirloom to a grandchild. Perhaps an old doll with assorted clothes or a truck or train with cargo will delight a child. Older children might enjoy Grandpa putting together a starter kit for a stamp or coin collection. Sharing traditions and activities can be rewarding for family members in all generations.

•Granny's Basket: magnifying glass or book with large print, hand lotion, stamps, writing paper and a gift certificate for the grocery store.

•College Student Basket: Nutritious snacks, prepaid telephone calling card, socks or hosiery, headbands, belts or college labeled notebooks or sportswear.

Parents of young children should be present when the basket is opened; read the books to or with the child; help with projects included (i.e. planting seeds, baking gingerbread); supervise cooking activities; and teach child to store the basket contents properly.

Migrant Son-Turned-Musician Tells His Story To New Garden Youth

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

TOUGHKENAMON (Chester Co.) — What better place to establish lasting roots than in New Garden?

Last December, school children, including many migrant youth, listened as a noted songwriter, guitar player, and actor Juan Avila entertained them with songs and stories of growing up with his migrant family from Mexico.

The event to the children and community in New Garden Township was significant: it signalled the beginning of a special kind of connection between migrant families who struggle to find a livelihood in this country and the 4-H program, "which provides a sense of belonging with an opportunity to learn and to participate through life-skill development" to the youth members, according to Laurie Sicko-Szoke, Chester County 4-H extension agent.

The Chester County 4-H program is working with the Chester County Intermediate Unit and the Pennsylvania Migrant Education Program to foster this type of "outreach." A teacher in the program, Maria Turse, recently spoke about the efforts of the groups to reach the migrant families.

"I strongly believe this effort has had a tremendous impact in the lives of many Chester County youngsters," said Turse. The program works with the intermediate unit from offices in Exton to reach the teenagers in the Kennett Square area and other neighborhoods.

During the December performance at New Garden Elementary School, Juan Avila provided musical entertainment and stories about his life as a child. He was born in Raymondville, Texas.

Avila's parents came into the country from Mexico, crossing the Rio Grande River at night. The Avila family moved to Corpus Christi, Texas when Juan was seven years old.

At the age of 13, Avila started writing songs and playing guitar. His first performance was an original song he and a fellow student sang in a school cafeteria.

When he was 14, he left home to study in St. Louis, Mo., where he lost his Mexican and Texas accent. He continued writing songs and was soon singing at all major school festivals and assemblies.

After a half year of college, Avila left everything behind to hitchhike through the country for two and half years with little more than his guitar. Avila's first official singing job was in the French Quarter of New Orleans. At 24, he signed an exclusive songwriter's contract with Criterion Music in Hollywood. They also produced a four-song demo of his original music.

In 1977 Avila moved to Philadelphia, where he has developed a loyal following, playing in concerts, colleges, and clubs. He has been a frequent guest on live radio broadcasts and local and TV cable shows.

In 1986 Avila released his first album featuring his band "Avila." His most recent release is a collection of some of his earlier folksongs entitled "Rivers Have No Boundaries." A film was released in 1991, entitled "Jabobo," about a modern-day shaman. Avila was in the leading role. Avila served as music director and was responsible for much of the film's music score.

Avila's work can be found on Ben Arnold's compact disk "Signal My Arrival" and on Jonathon Sprout's record "A Light In The Night."

Avila's response to the elementary school children was enthusiastic. "They appreciate the joy of music — his performance allows young people to enjoy the music," said Laurie Sicko-Szoke. "It also provides them with a sense of community, an appreciation for what they're doing, and what work has been done."

Sicko-Szoke emphasized the importance of 4-H leaders to provide these kinds of contacts for children, particularly children who are not normally exposed to these kinds of things. That's the purpose of the 4-H and Migrant Education programs' partnership — to strengthen youth and their families who create the work force for Chester County agribusiness. These families are vital to the agricultural base.

"His music provides a strong connection to his heritage yet speaks about what America is," she said. "He can provide recollections of his life in his music and his speech."

Avila can thus reach out to those children who experience the same kinds of frustrations in learning a new language, the behaviors, and the heritage of the countries while retaining the traditions of their own.

Through all this, a strong component of the partnership remains the parents who provide leadership and guidance for the children, according to Turse.

"The children are not going to improve and adjust without the help of their parents," she noted.

Stories that Avila told recount the efforts of Mexicans who migrated to Texas, saying they took that chance "so our children have better education here in America," said Sicko-Szoke.

"He found his own roots, his own niche, but it was something connected to his own heritage," said the 4-H agent.

Children need these powerful role models in order to help the children of migrant families to cope To flourish, the outreach program needs help — from families and friends of 4-H that would be willing to share their experiences and knowledge and reach out to the children.

Another Avila performance was held at the Kennett Middle School. Avila addressed the students about setting and attaining goals, then working hard for achievement, sharing his personal stories about growing up as a Mexican American.

Recently, the 4-H program partnered with the intermediate unit and Kennett Run Charities to provide an afterschool program for migrant students in Kennett Square. Since the program began in October, 25 students have received help with homework and English language skills. Additionally, the students were instructed in photography and art using the 4-H photography project curriculum.

To find out more about the outreach program, contact Maria Turse at the Chester County Intermediate Unit, (610) 524-5051 or Laurie Sicko-Szoke at the Chester County Cooperative Extension office, (610) 696-3500.

Flower Show

bottom was festooned with variegated Sweet Flag. Multicolored geraniums were also part of the display, and the bird house lattice perch was strung with sun flame vine.

• Stoney Brook also had a simple birdbath flower bed featured a pea green, sundial-type bath surrounded with Husker's Red Digitalis and lots of Hosta (plantain lily).

• One of the prettiest displays was also quite simple in design. It included an 8-foot arbor, measuring about 1 foot deep and 2½ feet wide. The olive-colored arbor held Blue Trumpet vine all the way down to the latticed fencing. In the beds on both sides were placed blue Salvia, creeping phlox, Browallia "Blue Bells" and Siberian Catmint. The display was entitled "Composition On A Theme" by Meadowbrook Farm, Meadowbrook.

• Tulips and hyacinths were the most common flowers throughout the show. One included a raised bed of tulips, Christmas Dream Tulips in silver pink and below them, China Pink hyacinths that were frosty pink and fragrant.

• One display was a literal "sea" of hyacinths from Jacques Amand, Ltd., Potomac Md. and Stanmore, Middlesex, England.

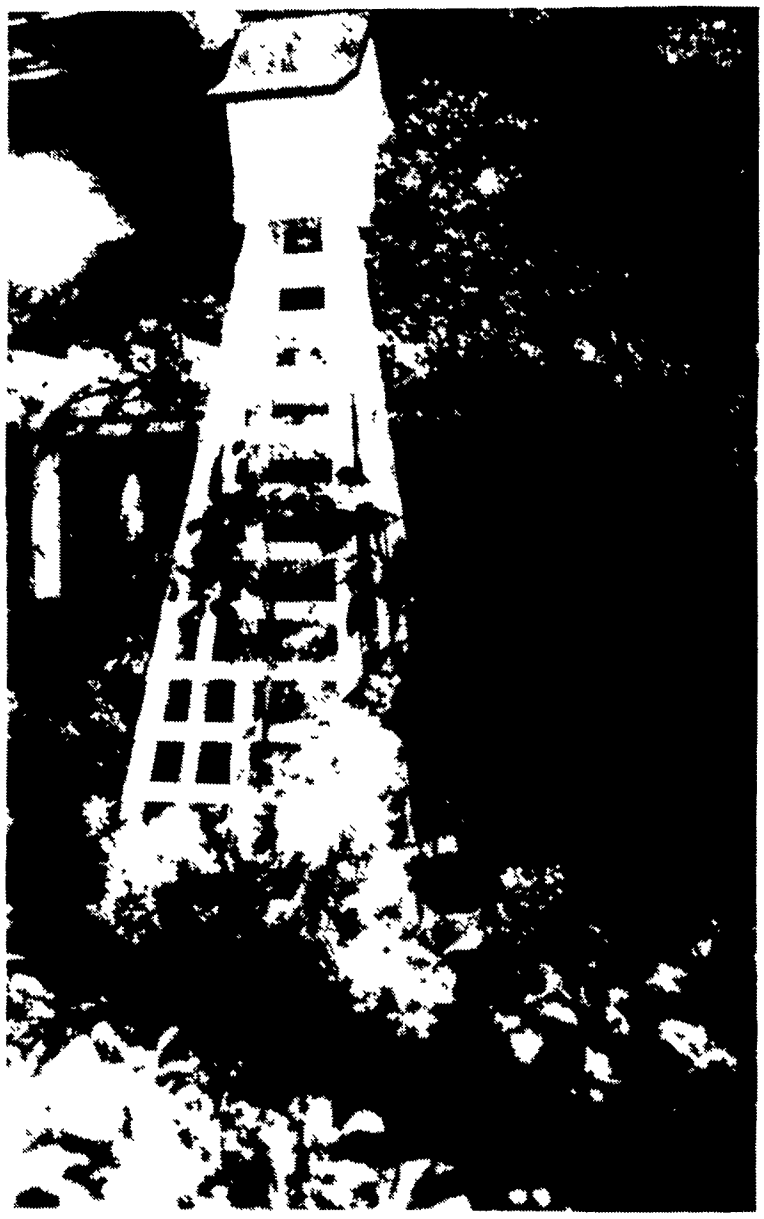
• Container butterfly gardening presentations were held by the Pennsylvania Horticulture Society at The Gardener's Studio.

• Carolyn's Cottage: An American Cottage Garden was presented by Daniel G. Kepich & Associates, Holicong. The vegetable garden included parsley, head lettuce, loose leaf lettuce, and dill bordered by Asiatic Lilies.

• "Three Maypoles and a Maiden" was a joint exhibit by the Williamson Free School of Mechanical Trades, Media, and The Pershore College of Horticulture, Pershore, Worcestershire, England. One fine piece of the display included a corner bed/stone wall with a center of pink Hybrid Rhododendrons and bottomed by Hardy Geranium Plantainlily, centered by an evergreen.

A "first" for the show was the premier of "The Gardener's Studio" to listen to experts provide tips on horticultural topics. Demonstrations provided hands-on gardening advice from more than 100 recognized experts. A total of 160 demonstrations were provided on 75 different topics, including trees and shrubs for the late winter garden, tips on tool care, diseases of trees, and many other topics.

At the show, more than 700 designers and gardeners from throughout the region entered more than 2,500 flower arrangements, individual plants and plant collections, flowering fruits and herbs, bulbs, potted plants, and hanging baskets in the artistic and horticultural classes. About 130 vendors brought their wares to the show, including gardening supplies, home greenhouse material, patio furniture, crafts, water garden products, and other items.



A flowerbed created by Stoney Brook Nursery in Glen Mills featured a centerpiece of a white latticed perch holding a simple bird house. The bed featured an Ever Red Japanese Maple. The bottom was festooned with variegated Sweet Flag. Multicolored geraniums were also part of the display, and the bird house lattice perch was strung with sun flame vine.

One display was a literal "sea" of hyacinths from Jacques Amand, Ltd., Potomac Md. and Stanmore, Middlesex, England.

Carolyn's Cottage: An American Cottage Garden was presented by Daniel G. Kepich & Associates, Holicong. The vegetable garden included parsley, head lettuce, loose leaf lettuce, and dill bordered by Asiatic Lilies.

A corner bed fashioned by F.A. Bartlett Tree Expert Company, Stamford, Ct. The centerpiece of the bed included a flowering white dogwood. The top crown of flowers included violet Roseum Elegans Rhododendrons. The bottom crown included ruby red Lavender Impatiens.

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

Some people find it easy to throw things away. My neighbors have big trash bags each week sitting in front of their homes. Sometimes even broken furniture or a rug is being disposed of there.

My family always saved everything — "You never know when you might need it," they said. Even I find it difficult to throw away old calendars with beautiful pictures. And of course, there is a ball of string in a drawer that keeps getting bigger as I seldom use any of it. My father saved the license plates from this 1923 Overland car and he repaired my little express wagon for me. It is rather fragile but I can still use it to pull the grandchildren.

Letters have always been saved and the ones that Nancy wrote to me when she was in college are now her diary of those years. I remember seeing letters written in a pink-lavendar ink by my Grandfather to my Grandmother Landis in 1872. And, I wonder if the ink was made from pokewood berries. Cards and letters written in the late 1800s tell of another time when their work was different and yet the same. They picked stones out of the fields and canned cherries and peaches even as we do. They were concerned about each others health the same as we are now.

Some of the memorabilia that I have given away recently included a 1918 funeral notice with the envelope edged in black. One was a Latin book from Shippen School in Lancaster. Another item that was appreciated was an 1899 picture of a child in a yard taken by a professional photographer. The background was a group of very large houseplants.

Just now tin match holders, coffee grinders, tiny crocks and glass telephone insulators are collectible items. If you keep items long enough they will be considered to be antiques. Sometimes a particular piece of furniture will even bring thousands of dollars. The problem is to know which items to save and which ones to dispose of when they're no longer useful.

Women In Agriculture To Gather For Spring Conference

LIVERPOOL, N.Y. — A day of interactive workshops and practical educational seminars await Pennsylvania and Maryland women who are active in dairying at the 1997 Women in Agriculture spring conference, March 18, in Chambersburg. Sponsored by Protiva, a unit of Monsanto, the conference at the Holiday Inn features a keynote speaker, in addition to a stellar lineup of farm-management workshops. Each workshop is geared toward enhancing the role of women dairy partners, including sessions regarding tips on time management, animal care, and farm finance.

"Women, both currently and historically, are key influencers in farm management issues and business-related financial decision making," says Dorothea D. Fitzsimmons, D.V.M., Northeast Technical Services, Protiva. "This conference is an excellent opportunity for women to meet and interact in an idea exchange with other dairy farmers in the region."

The keynote speaker, Patsy Perkins, owner of Idealink, is an experienced and well-known presenter known for her lively, thought-provoking workshops. Her presentation, "Get Jazzed: The Four C's of Harmony — Communication, Confidence, Consideration and Collaboration" is aimed at relaying practical techniques and information to help women in the dairy industry be stronger today and in the future.

To register for the conference, submit the registration fee of $15 (checks payable to Monsanto Company) to Jacky Conroy at the Northeast Regional office, Protiva, a Unit of Monsanto, 7481 Henry Clay Boulevard, Liverpool, N.Y. 13088, or for more information contact Conroy at (800) 455-5965.

Book Review

Of Special Interest To Farmers

Cris Peterson, a resident of Grantsburg, Wisconsin, has written a new picture book for children photographed by Alvis Upitis and published by Boyds Mills Press.

One hundred years ago, draft horses clip-clopped on nearly every street and dusty road in America. From their enormous strength came the term "horsepower." They helped plow fields, pull carriages full of people, and haul wagonloads of milk. In winter, summer, spring, and fall, these huge yet gentle and intelligent animals worked tirelessly with their owners — and continue to do so today, although in far fewer numbers. In Horsepower: The Wonder of Draft Horses, author Cris Peterson presents three breeds of draft horses — Percherons, Belgians, and Clydesdales — and the families who care for and work with them.

Kirkus review journal in its recent critique of this title said, "Fascinating nuggets of draft-horse lore are embedded in the simple text: A century ago there were 27 million such horses at work in America; Percherons are descended from the huge medieval warhorses that carried armored knights; one horsepower is accessibly defined as the amount of force necessary to raise a weight of 250 pounds from a hole 220 feet deep in one minute . . . Workhorses have been overshadowed by their flashier cousins; it's good for young readers to be reminded of their beauty and historical importance."

Alvis Upitis's full-color photographs capture the horses at work and at rest and include close-ups of hooves, working rigs of many types, from a plow hitched to a dozen Belgians, to a one-horse open sleigh. Upitis is particularly effective at illustrating the relationship that often develops between humans and horses.

Both of Peterson's and Upitis's previous collaborations, Harvest Year, which documents many of the fruits, vegetabled, eggs, dairy products, seafood, and poultry produced in various regions of our country in a month-to-month format, and Extra Cheese, Please!, which chronicles the process of making cheese, from the birth of a calf to the topping on a pizza, have won the Ohio Farm Women's Award for Children's Literature. Extra Cheese, Please! also received the Wisconsin Library Association Children's Book Award for Outstanding Achievement. Ms. Peterson writes with a first-hand appreciation for the circle of life on American farms and clearly presents her story to young readers. She and her husband Gary and their three children — Ben, Matt, and Caroline — grow corn, oats, and hay and also raise 50 dairy cows on a 300-acre farm in Grantsburg, Wisconsin.

"It's important for children and adults to appreciate the incredible abundance and diversity of American agriculture," she says. "It's one of our country's greatest strengths and a bit of a miracle."

Born in Minneapolis, Cris Peterson earned a bachelor of science degree in education from the University of Minnesota. In addition to writing, farming, and parenting, she reviews children's books in her nationally syndicated column, "Huckleberry Bookshelf," and frequently speaks to school students and farm groups.

Horsepower and other Boyds Mills Press books are available from your local bookseller or Boyds Mills Press.

Vegetarian Program Held

RUTGERS, N.J. — Rutgers Cooperative Extension will offer a program on vegetarian nutrition on March 18. In the 1995 Dietary Guidelines, the US Department of Agriculture recognized that vegetarian diets can meet Recommended Dietary allowances for nutrients. In this program, participants will learn how a vegetarian diet can provide adequate nutrition. Health experts for years have been telling us to eat more plant foods and less fat, especially saturated fat. Research has shown that a diet rich in vegetables, fruits and grains can help reduce the risk of diseases such as cancer and heart disease.

We will discuss the most effective way to meet protein needs and explore the use of beans, whole grains, dairy products, fruits and vegetables. Resources and recipes will be available as well. The program will be held at the Cooperative Extension Center on Route 31 in Flemington from 7-9 p.m. The fee is $3. To register or request more information please call (908) 788-1342.

STOUGHTON ESTATE TOYS

10 A.M. SATURDAY, MARCH 29

RIDGE FIRE CO. BLUE ROOM
ALONG RT. 23, BETWEEN PHOENIXVILLE, PA AND RT. 100

A wonderfully disjointed accumulation of toys from 1920 to 1990, obviously gathered without any serious thought, just for the happy madness of it all. We dug it out of a house that apparently overflows with the sheer joy of living, and exuberance for fun, color & animation. You will see some absolutely beautiful 50 year old tin litho & comic character toys. A bit of cast iron & pressed steel, lots of Marx, good run of lead soldiers and more than enough die cast. When you attend our Good Friday Auction, you will be allowed to preview this collection and submit absentee bids if you like.

HIGH GRADE TRAINS
SAT., MARCH 29
10 A.M.
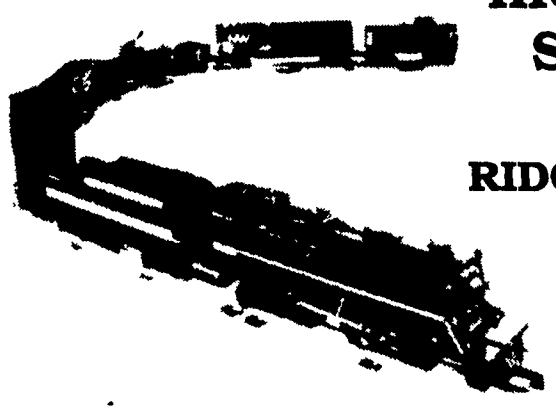
RIDGE FIRE CO. PAVILION ALONG RT. 23, BETWEEN PHOENIXVILLE, PA AND RT. 100



A reasonably large segment of the train buying public has discovered the excellent detail and smooth operation of "Modern Era" trains. Not that they have abandoned the old Lionel favorites of the Forties, Fifties & Sixties, but this new breed of electric trains by Lionel, Mike's Train House, Williams & Weaver have plenty to offer collector and operator alike. Of course, everybody wants the big stuff, and they want it like new, in the bargain. Well, we can satisfy those demands with this extra clean collection, and in most cases we can even throw in the boxes! Really nice things from 1950 to 1995; Including several shelves & Lionel classics.

Brillion

The "Quality Crafted" Line Better Seedbeds... Better Stands!

SOIL BUILDERS
5-7-9-11-13 Shanks

SOIL BUILDERS. Optional - Coulter gang can be hydraulically controlled to save maintenance dollars. Available in 2 & 3 bar.

BRILLION COMMANDER SYSTEM

Versatile tillage tools such as Brillion's Soil Commander allows the use of Chisel Shanks or Deep-ripper Shanks to break up soil compaction. Front disk gangs and optional rear leveling disks cut residue, breaks clods, level the field and prepare the field to absorb moisture from melting snow and to reduce soil erosion. Brillion's Field Commander combined with a Brillion Pulverizer excels at creating the perfect seedbed for spring planting. C-Shanks or S-Tine Shanks leave a uniform mixture of soil and surface residue for the most effecient chemical incorporation. The X-Fold Pulverizer (shown below) breaks up clods, firms the soil without compacting, eliminates air pockets in the soil and levels the soil for optimal seed placement. For less time in the field and better yields, go Brillion.

AG SURE STAND SEEDERS
5 Ft.-8 Ft.-10 Ft.-12 Ft.

For years Brillion Grass Seeders have proven to be the best machine for plantinggrasses and legumes... and now they're even better! Larger, heavier boxes, high seeding rates, nylon lined seed meter, heavier frame, new drive system and more. Available in 3-point or pull type. SSPT604, SS8, SS10, SS12

3 PT. BASKET HARROWS
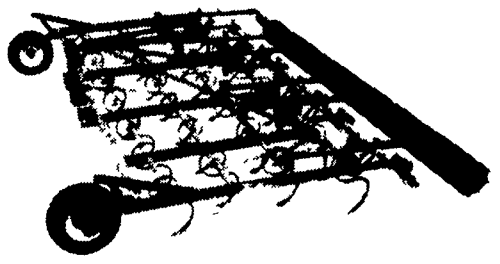
12 Ft., 15 Ft., 18 Ft.



Brillion has designed a 3 pt. S-Tine field cultivator with a larger, aggressively angled 12" diameter rolling basket, a 4-bar frame that allows for either 4" or 6" tooth spacing and an adjustable coil tine leveler bar. Gauge wheels are optional.

LANDCOMMANDERS
3-5-7-9-11-13 Shanks

The front disc gang has 22" x 1/4" disc blades on 15" spacings. They are designed to cut residue and work the ground to a depth of 6". The Landcommander has the ability to till from 8" to 20" deep. The rear disc gang has 20" x 7 ga. disc blades on 7.5 spacing. The 6"x4" mainframe is designed to handle the stress from the deep till shanks and disc gangs.

P-SERIES TRANSPORT Grain Pulverizers
10 Ft. to 20 Ft.

Rotary Frame Pulverizers; PT10 Series Transport Concept. Machine weight is hydraulically rotated over the wheels for transport. This reduces draw bar hitch weight considerably and provides ample clearance for transport. Also Available As Pull Type.

X-FOLD PULVERIZERS
19 Ft. to 46 Ft.

The X-Fold pulverizers are designed to meet the needs of today's larger acreage farmers...and Brillion offers them in two models and 11 sizes from 19' through 46'. Available with 20" Ductile Rollers.

2 or 3 BAR CHISEL PLOWS
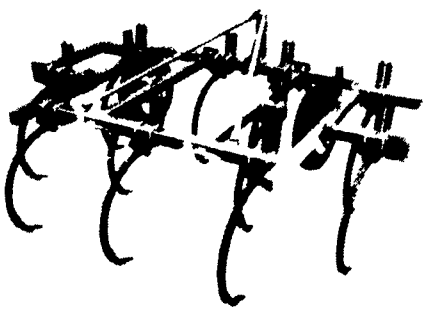
5-7-9-11 or 10 12-14-16 Shanks



The CPP series of mounted models enables you to turn short and fast... to transport easily, utilizing your tractor's hydraulic system.

M-MD PULVI-MULCHERS
7'4", 10'4", 12'4", 13'8", 15'

The Brillion Pulvi-Mulcher converts fall or spring plowing into clod-free, high yield seedbeds. Just flick the tractor hydraulic control, pulvi-mulcher lifts to transport wheels.

ML SERIES PULVI-MULCHERS
12'6", 13'10", 15'2", 18'9"

- Easy rolling 20" ductile iron notched or crowfoot roller wheels with 5 year limited warranty.
- Longer life external mounted bearings.
- Longer, heavier drawbar for shorter turns.

COMPACTION COMMANDERS
NO-TILL RIPPER DEEP RIPPER - 3-5-7 Shanks

Brillion introduces their new Compaction Commander... designed to break up hard-pan and compaction as deep as 20". The standard V-shaped alloy point and wear strip leaves residue on the surface with minimal soil disturbance. Auto-rest shanks with 20" of trip height allows for non-stop tillage. Parabolic shanks lift and fracture the soil. 39" of underframe clearance assures trouble free operation even in heavy residue.

Video Workshop Gives Citizens Tools To Protect Drinking Water

YOUNGSVILLE (Warren Co.) — Pollution of drinking water is an issue of concern to everyone.

To give citizens the information they need to insure the quality of their water, the Warren County League of Women Voters and Warren County Cooperative Extension will sponsor a video workshop on the protection of drinking water.

The Tools for Drinking Water Protection Video Workshop, a national conference, will air live via satellite on March 19 from 2:30 p.m.-4 p.m.

The site at the Agricultural and Learning Center, Youngsville, will link with more than 300 sites across the country that are expected to participate.

Experts on drinking water protection will focus on regulatory and nonregulatory ways to prevent pollution and protect drinking water from existing pollution. They will discuss case studies of successful strategies that have been used in other areas.

The video workshop will also provide participants with guidelines on how to establish water monitoring programs, land use planning, public education, and contingency plans.

Many citizens have heard the stories of unsafe drinking water. "This video workshop will help us evaluate the status of our drinking water protection plans here in Warren County and give us the information we need to improve drinking water quality," said James Cowden, county extension director.

Half of the population of the United States relies on groundwater as their main source of drinking water. In Warren County nearly all of the drinking water is obtained from underground wells or springs.

The video workshop will consist of a national satellite feed from PBS's Adult Learning Satellite Service, introduced by the administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency and Becky Cain, president, League of Women Voters. Local water experts from around the nation will be panelists. Local participants will be able to speak to the naitonal panelists by phone, fax, or e-mail during the program.

For more information on the tools for drinking water protection video workshop, contact Warren County Cooperative Extension, (814) 563-9388, or visit its web site at www.drinkingwater.org.

Local Producers To Participate In Study

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — By conducting a confidential agriculture statistics survey among the state's farm community, Agriculture Secretary Charles C. Brosius said the state and federal government will have a better idea of how the state's agriculture industry is doing.

"Survey results will be used to assess how changes in the 1996 federal Farm Bill and state agriculture-related laws are impacting producers," Brosius said. "We urge farmers who are contacted to participate in this confidential study, which will eventually be used to their benefit."

In April, the Agricultural Resource Management Study will be conducted by the Pennsylvania Agriculture Statistics Service, a cooperative program of the USDA and state Agriculture Department.

Along with documenting the impact of the federal Farm Bill, the information will help university and extension personnel design educational programs for farmers and allow suppliers to more accurately meet farm operators' needs.

Nearly 350 producers will be notified by letter and asked to participate in the study. Interviewers from the Pennsylvania Agriculture Statistics Service, will then arrange a visit to log their confidential responses.

"The Agriculture Resource Management Study is one way that USDA works with producers to provide meaningful, accurate and objective statistical information and services that help keep U.S. agriculture and rural communities among the strongest in the world," Brosius said. He added that policy makers and analysts at every level depend on studies from the statistics service to make informed decisions that affect state producers.

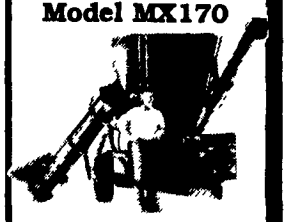
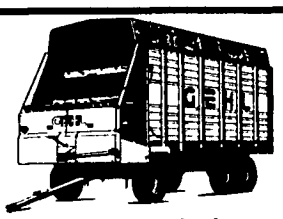
Most Mix-All Owners Will Never Buy Another. Model MX125 and Model MX170



In fact, you'd probably have a hard time convincing Gehl Mix-All® owners to even look at anything else. And why should they?
The Mix-All's big 21-inch wide hammermill features 66 reversible thin hammers that cut, rather than pound the feed to deliver a more consistent grind and ensure uniform mixing for a better feed conversion rate.
Gehl's self-contained hydraulic system is designed-in, not added on. It provides the precision of infinitely variable in-feed attachment control to match tractor power for greater grinding capacity. Plus you get fast, smooth, trouble-free unloading with greater reliability.
And a wide variety of options and attachments lets you customize your Mix-All to fit any operation.

GEHL.



Gehl's new BU980 Self-unloading forage box has been redesigned for improved performance and durability.

Features include:
- ☐ True variable-speed drive for infinite unloading speeds.
- ☐ Single lever control.
- ☐ Improved beater design.
- ☐ Stronger drive chain and reinforced roof.
- ☐ Standard highway light package.
- ☐ Optional folding 18-inch conveyor extension.

GEHL. Box Spreaders

Even when it's empty... it's loaded.

Low profile design means easy loading by skid loader front end loader or barn cleaner

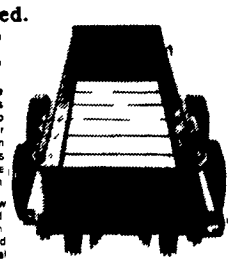
Gehl-Tuff Flooring prevents the apron from freezing to the floor allowing manure to slide out with little resistance. Less apron pull means less wear and tear on drives and apron chains. One piece construction won't flex under heavy loads

Extra strong T-bar apron chains with an average tensile strength of over 23,500 pounds keep the biggest loads moving

Double Galvanized steel sides are corrosion resistant for long life. One-piece seamless construction won't catch material or leak

Optional hydraulic endgate rests in front of the beater paddles to secure sloppy loads and keep heaped material out of the beater unit you're ready to spread. An available liner pan reduces spills in the yard or roadway while enhancing the spread distribution

Oscillating tandem wheels allow faster ground speeds while providing greater flotation. They're standard on the 325 bushel and 425 bushel models and optional on the 250 bushel model



Twelve extra wide one-piece beater paddles are symmetrically positioned for broad uniform spreads. Paddles are fabricated from tough 1/4" thick high strength steel. Bolt on replacement tips are available to extend paddle life

Constant velocity pto for continuous smooth chatter free power transfer when spreading on turns and reduced stress on the entire drive line

CENTER-LINE BALERS

Are Better

This Baler Can Save Thousands Of Dollars With Increased Milk Production In Greatly Reduced Heat Loss Obtained With Our Direct Feed Crop Flow System (Unbiased Testing Has Proven The Facts)

Your Best Buy in Balers ... from Binkley & Hurst Bros., Inc.

The Baler That Works!

WHY STRAIGHT IS BETTER THAN SIDEWAYS . . .

Reason #1 Transport width ranges from 7 11 to only 8 88 on our 8550 Model Conventional balers are generally 1 foot wider in transport

Reason #2 No need to w den our baler out once you re in the field or narrowing when leaving the field The conventional baler must be narrowed and widened Reduced time and effort means money

Reason #3 Never a need to pick up bales when opening a field and cropping them on the ground you can even leave the bale thrower on and drop the back chute Since the baler and tractor straddles the windrow the bales dropped on the ground from previous rounds never interferes with the operation

Reason #4 Gauge wheels are mounted on both sides for better performance Not so with conventional balers

Reason #5 Our pickup is half the height of convent onal balers This means less leaves are lost because less travel distance up and over the pickup is required An optional hydraulic pickup lift is even available

Reason #6 Conventional balers use high maintenance cross feeders or sweep arms to move hay to the chamber Our baler feeds hay from the pickup straight into the chamber by the use of a simple stuffer mechanism Leaves don t fall to the bottom of the chamber and later fall out the back Due to our design leaves are placed evenly throughout the bale – the leaves are not given time to settle to the bottom

Reason #7 Due to our design our plunger stroke distance is 25 30% less than conventional balers Example John Deere 327 337 347 and 467 Models = 30 stroke Case IH 8520 = 21 6 stroke and a high of 23 on our 8560 The result Less wear less side to side stress force and less repairs

Reason #8 The clearance of our needles from the gr und far ex ceeds conventional balers due to the high position of our chamber This translates to less breakage and bending of the needles due to hitting high places in the field etc

Reason #9 We have equal ba er weight distribution on both carry ing wheels for easier handling and less side pull on hills

Reason #10 The distance from the end of our bale chamber t the thrower belts is enough so that the thr wer doesn t fight t the bale ic the bale is not stiff wedged in th chamber when the thrower first c ntacts the bale

Reason #11 Our bale edges are sharp and corners are square on all types of hay excellent when stackers are used or hay is hauled by truck

Reason #12 Proven and reliable Deering type knotters on all center line balers

Let's Get Together Today, Call And Ask For Landis

Straight-Through Hay Handling Saves Leaves and Nutrition

Hay moves in a straight line from pickup to kickout, so a finished bale contains more high-protein leaves than a bale from a side chamber baler.

Finally, a practical way to apply organic mulch to row crops

Organic mulch is the natural way to suppress weeds, help retain soil moisture, and improve soil conditions. Trouble is, hand mulching takes too much time and effort. Now the Millcreek Row Mulcher makes it easy to mulch berries, grapes, fruit trees, and other row crops. One operator can mulch an acre in just a couple hours depending on conditions.

Spread A Variety of Materials, Including Lime

You can spread all types of stemless flowable mulches, such as wood chips, sawdust, chopped bark, even compost, with plenty of clearance to avoid plant damage. Plus, the Millcreek Row Mulcher is ideal for banding lime and other materials requiring lighter applications. The optional metering gate gives you complete control of the coverage so you can tailor applications to best suit your cultivation practices.

For Small Growers
This may be the affordable machine you've been looking for to mulch berries, grapes, and other row crops. Think of the labor you'll save.

For Commercial Growers
Choose from 3.1, 4.5, and 6.8 cubic yard capacities. Or call to discuss your special requirements.

Vitamix Makes Antibiotics Obsolete!
You Can Sell The Milk
When You Use Vitamix Instead Of Antibiotics

A dairyman's helper gave a cow an antibiotic and forgot to make a written record of it. He then went on vacation and for the next five days, the milk from 900 cows went down the drain!! The $42,000.00 lost would have bought enough Vitamix to last for years and years for that dairyman's whole herd.

You can sell the milk when feeding Vitamix. Vitamix is a mixture of vitamins, minerals, enzymes, electrolytes, and proteins, especially calculated to feed the immune system. Vitamix is the result of over 20 years research and over 20,000 feeding experiments. Vitamixingredients are so micro pulverized and easily digestible that some of them melt in the mouth and are absorbed into the bloodstream while the cow is still chewing her feed. Her organs increase the output of antibodies (white cells) within minutes, and can often double the output of antibodies within one hour after consuming Vitamix, and you can get Vitamix without a prescription. Vitamix is all natural. You just put Vitamix in the feed whenever there are symptoms of a contagious disease or infection.

The cow's immune system can cure any and every kind of contagious disease and infection quicker, safer, more consistently than any medical drug in the world when you support the immune system. The immune system is the only real defense. I keep cows and horses for feeding experiments.The last time I used an antibiotic was in 1984 and haven't lost a cow, calf or horse since I quit using antibiotics.

Any time any human or animal gets a contagious disease or any kind of infection, it is for one reason, and one reason only; The immune system failed to do an adequate job of defending against it. In other words, the immune system let you down.

Every time you use antibiotics, sulfa drug or an immune stimulator; you weaken the immune system. See the Physicians Desk Reference (PDR) for more information on the side effects of antibiotics. The information in the PDR was provided by the drug companies that make the drugs as required by law.

Shouldn't we be feeding the immune system instead? Support the immune system. Their lives and health depend on it. Feed Vitamix every time for every contagious disease or infection.
Vitamix is the best procedure in the world for Mastitis. It is quick and easy and you can sell the milk when feeding Vitamix.

How long does it take when you take the "Support the immune system approach?" I have seen calves that were down, had high fever, bloody scours and were dehydrated. One needed help to hold its head up. The only thing I gave them was Vitamix and water. In three hours, I had to run them down and get them cornered to give the Vitamix. Dairymen tell me that Vitamix is faster than anything else they ever used.

When there is a serious case of anything contagious or infectious; I give Vitamix once an hour for three hours, or until they are back on their feed and doing noticeably better. I continue Vitamix six times daily for a few days. Vitamix typically costs only $2 to $3 a day for a cow (less for a calf). The total cost for one cow for one illness is typically $8 to $10 from start to finish.

Vitamix costs less than antibiotics, and you can get it without a prescription. Vitamix is completely drug free!!! You can sell the milk when you use Vitamix !!! ( When you use antibiotics, you pour the milk out for 5 days, sometimes more. You risk making a mistake and pouring all your milk out for 5 days or more.)

You save money Every Time you use Vitamix. Get some Vitamix now to keep on hand. Use Vitamix as soon as you see symptoms of anything contagious or infectious. You will know you did the right thing within hours.

Preventing and curing all contagious disease and infections boils down to this. Increasing the capacity to produce white cells (Antibodies). All white cells are made by the bone marrow. Antibiotics cause "bone marrow depression" thereby reducing its ability to make white cells to fight diseases and infection (See Physician's Desk Reference Book [PDR]).

I have done over 20,000 feeding experiments on healing the body, and have yet to find an incurable contagious disease or infection.

Why sit around waiting for a miracle? You can order Vitamix right now. Miracles are great and they do happen now and then; if you wait around one might happen for you. But the immune system is a miracle. You can order Vitamix today and keep it on hand, then you will have it when you need it.
Vitamix ...when you need a miracle. The best source of information about Vitamix is people who have used it. Ask a friend about Vitamix.

Deere 945 Rotary MoCo Cuts 13-Foot, 1-Inch Swath

MOLINE, Ill. — The all-new John Deere 945 Center-Pivot Rotary MoCo features the John Deere modular-design rotary cutterbar, along with the maneuverability and productivity of a center-pivot hitch design.

The eight-disk rotary cutterbar features a 13-foot 1-inch cutting width. The modules are replaceable and interchangeable. The high-strength cutterbar modules utilize new gears designed for quieter operation.

Power to each disk is directed through a John Deere-exclusive, specially designed splined hub. When the disk experiences a severe impact, the hub's splines shear, protecting the inner gear-drive assemblies.

Cutting knives are free-swinging to reduce damage if they strike a solid object, and are reversible to extend service life. At rated PTO speed, the 945 MoCo disks rotate at 2,650 rpm, with a knife tip speed of 191 mph for clean, efficient cutting.

A heavy-duty, three-point suspension system gives full lateral flotation to the cutterbar and platform without binding. The large float springs are quickly adjustable without tools. Gauge shoes under the cutterbar are easily adjustable.

The John Deere 945 Center-Pivot Rotary MoCo features the John Deere modular-design cutterbar. The eight-disk rotary cutterbar provides a 13-foot 1-inch cutting width. The 945 MoCo can be equipped with either urethane-roll or impeller conditioning.

The cutterbar assembly is easily adjusted to match cutting or crop requirements. An adjustable turnbuckle top-link is standard, and includes a wrench for simple adjustment. An optional, hydraulic cylinder adjustment allows quick, easy, on-the-go changes to the cutterbar angle.

The John Deere 945 Rotary MoCo is the only mower in its class available with two different conditioning systems: urethane conditioning rolls or an impeller conditioner.

The 106-inch urethane conditioning rolls feature the John Deere-exclusive intermeshing-cleat design that provides 21 percent more crimping edges than chevron-styled rolls. Stems are crimped more, allowing moisture to escape faster. Indentations in each cleat mean more pressure per square inch is applied to the crop at the surrounding area. That means the crop is crimped more thoroughly. For consistent power, even in the toughest conditions, the conditioning rolls on the John Deere 945 are shaft-driven.

The impeller conditioner features 70 free-swinging tines, concentrated in the material-flow areas created by the rotary cutterbar. As the plant material passes through the impeller conditioner, it rubs against the adjustable conditioning hood and other plants. This scrubbing action removes the waxy surface from the stems of the plants to allow faster crop dry-down.

A simple lever adjustment controls spacing between the impeller tines and the conditioning hood. The closer the hood is to the tines, the more aggressive the crop conditioning.

The impeller conditioner can be adjusted to two speeds — 865 rpm for grass crops and 624 rpm for legume crops.

If It's Not Broke, Fix It

RACINE, Wis. — If it's not broke, don't fix it. At least that's what conventional wisdom says. But sometimes, conventional wisdom isn't the best answer, and this old adage is the perfect example.

Running your planter, combine or other equipment until it breaks gives you two problems: the cost of repair or replacement plus the added loss of not having the equipment when you need it. After all, equipment never fails when it's standing idle.

As anyone who knows Murphy's Law can tell you, failures always happen right in the middle of an important job, such as planting or harvesting.

"The machines that I'm servicing in the field because of a breakdown are the ones that weren't serviced before the season started," said Don Carper, farm equipment service manager for C.B. Hoober & Son, a Pennsylvania farm equipment dealer.

And Carper knows what he's talking about. His shop performed inspections and preventive maintenance on 102 rotary combines and six corn planters this year. "Sometimes there's a need for minor field adjustments to some machines that have been inspected," he said. "But there have been on major teardowns."

Experience like this shows why equipment manufacturers recommend inspections and preventive maintenance. They not only help ensure long life for equipment, but they also mean maximum productivity. So initiatives such as Case Corporation's Customized Maintenance Inspection (CMI) program have been developed to help owners get the most from their equipment.

Necessary before-failure repairs are performed when they're most economical — when a component has provided a full, useful life but has not deteriorated to the point of complete failure or significantly impaired performance.

Comprehensive inspections and routine maintenance allow farmers to spot and take care of problems long before they become disasters, at a fraction of the cost of dealing with equipment failures.

Before-failure repairs are performed more on the basis of component condition than on hours or months.

Since most components will signal impending problems, repairs can be planned and carried out before complete failure, preventing unscheduled downtime, avoiding more extensive damage and minimizing costs.

"When we look at a machine and see that a left-hand bushing is failing, we usually find that the right-hand bushing isn't far behind. So the smartest thing for a farmer to do is have us replace them both at the same time and perhaps save himself some downtime during a critical part of the season," said Carper.

Above and beyond operational factors, the ability to plan for major repairs gives a farmer more control of maintenance scheduling and budgeting. Pre-failure repair also eliminates the possibility of damage to related systems caused by component failure.

Farmhand Expands Product Line

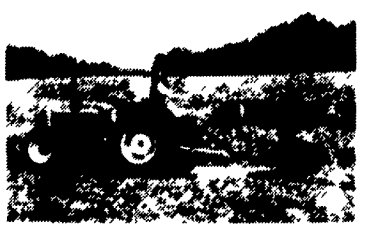
ATLANTA, Ga. — AGCO Corporation's Farmhand brand is introducing a new line of rotary cutters and estate groomers for 1997. The new line will include the heavy-duty RC250 and RC270 Series cutter that can be used to cut all types of grass, pasture, and brush.

"The new cutters expand the Farmhand line to take advantage of opportunities in our core markets," said Andy Anderson, Farmhand marketing manager. "Constructed of high-tensile steel, the RC250 and RC270 combine the strength of heavy-duty material with versatile, user-friendly features and options."

For light commercial and home use, the rugged Farmhand RC250 Rotary Cutters are available in four cutting widths — 48 inches, 60 inches, 66 inches, and 72 inches. All four sizes have two blades capable of cutting through brush up to 1½ inches in diameter. Depending on the cutter width, the blade tip speed ranging from 12,885 to 15,378 feet per minute. Positive tail wheel adjustment allows the operator to cut within a ½ inch to 3½ inch height range.



Built strong and durable, the Farmhand RC250 and RC270 offer six widths to match all your cutting needs and adjustable blades to provide you with a first class finish.

With a gearbox rated at 50 hp, the RC250 requires a 20 to 40 PTO hp tractor. To protect the gearbox, the RC250 is equipped with both slipclutch and shear bolt protection. Standard 20 inch round stump jumpers provide additional protection on the RC250 Rotary Cutters.

Because safety is always a concern when working with cutters, the Farmhand RC250 Series comes equipped with front and rear deflector shields.

Available in four widths — 60 inches, 72 inches, 84 inches, and 120 inches — the RC270 Rotary Cutters have an adjustable cutting height range of 1½ inches to 12 inches and are capable of cutting through brush up to 2 inches in diameter. The ½ inch by 4 inch blades on the RC270 rotate at tip speeds up to 16,233 feet per minute to yield a smooth, precise cut.

1997 Dairy Of Distinction Farms Sought

Kingston (Luzerne Co.) — Do you take pride in maintaining your dairy farm? Does your dairy farm project an attractive, wholesome image to consumers? If so, the Dairy Of Distinction Program of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania will consider your farm for the program's annual recognition awards.

The Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program was first started in 1983 to recognize the hard work and dedication of the farmers who maintain attractive farms. The purpose of the program is to instill a greater sense of confidence in the wholesomeness of dairy products, and increase their sales.

Farms that apply are judged on the roadside appearance of buildings, grounds, and surroundings, since this is what our dairy product consumers observe as they drive by. The cleanliness of the barnyard, feed areas and manure management are other aspects of the farm operation taken into consideration. Roadside judging is conducted during the month of May Former winners of past years are also rejudged to ensure they continue to meet the standards of excellence.

To qualify for consideration, you must be actively dairy farming and shipping milk. Applications are available from your state office. ## HOW IS YOUR FARM SCORED?

Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program, Inc.

Awards will be based upon neatness, good maintenance and other factors which can be controlled by the farmer Attractive background scenery should not be weighed heavily in judging. All judging observations should be made from a vehicle at one or more points on an adjacent public highway (or if farm is off the road, the nearest lane) Judging should give equal consideration to old wood construction and new construction of metal or concrete block.

The award program may be used for subsequent advertising or promotion activities for dairy p oducts or dairy farming. Farmers who apply for awards agree that; if selected they will cooperate with these activities and make all reasonable efforts to maintain both the exterior and interior of their properties in an acceptable condition.

HOW THE APPLICATION WORKS

The owner or operator of the dairy farm should sign the application and send it to NEDFBP secretary by April 15.

HOW THE JUDGING WORKS

Judging teams will visit farms during the month of May. Farms will be judged each year as the award is presented on an annual basis Any dairy failing to maintain appearance standards will be asked to remove their sign The Dairy of Distinction signs remain the property of the committee, not the property of the dairy farmer. All farms must achieve a compliance score of 90 percent on their Dairy of Distinction score card. Your cooperative or milk handler will be contacted to approve your milk quality.

RULES FOR THE DAIRY OF DISTINCTION AWARD

1). The Dairy of Distinction sign remains the property of the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Committee.
2) The post and bracket shall be supplied by and maintained by the dairy farmer. It is suggested that a wood post 4' x 4' x 12' or iron pipe 2' x 12' be used. Posts or pipe should be installed and maintained in true vertical position with 8' above ground. Top of the bracket shou'd be lower than six inches from the top of the post.
3). Sign shall be displayed in front of the dairy at roadside. An attractive post and bracket, or other frame, shall be used to display the sign. No more than three signs should be displayed from the sign frame or post, and all shall be of a style, general size and quality comparable to the Dairy of Distinction sign. Sign should be secured on all sides to avoid wind damage.
4). Signs shall not be moved to other premises. New owners of a Dairy of Distinction farm must apply to retain the sign.

DOES THE URNER BARRY REPORT ACCURATELY REFLECT EGG PRICES?

Leigh Maynard
Ph.D. Candidate
And James Dunn
Professor
Agricultural Economics
Penn State

Most wholesale food products are sold in private transactions. The parties in these transactions must have some publicly available market price as a starting point for the negotiation. From this starting point adjustment can be made for local conditions, but both parties know how the price resembles the "market" price.

Problems arise when there is no public market to observe. Then an alternative must be found. For eggs, this alternative has been "Urner Barry's Price-Current" for many years.

Most eggs are produced under contract or within integrated operations. Those traded in cash markets are usually priced by formula using quotations published by Urner Barry as a reference. Urner Barry surveys market participants daily to obtain an estimate of current egg prices. Some producers feel the Urner Barry report does not accurately reflect market conditions.

The unhappiness with a commonly used source of market information is not restricted to egg producers. Many livestock producers are skeptical about the Urner Barry Yellow Sheet, which provides similar information about meat prices. Many in the dairy industry are now upset by the role the National Cheese Exchange plays in setting milk prices. In these and other instances, there is no counterpart to the Chicago Board of Trade, where a large volume of transactions provide a broad-based, public record of each day's market. Instead for eggs, meat and cheese virtually all transactions are private.

Nevertheless, it is essential that buyers and sellers of eggs, meat, and cheese have some reference price to guide their transactions. Otherwise prices will be too slow to adjust to changing market conditions and surpluses or shortages can occur. But how does one get a reliable reference price?

What has happened in many instances, including eggs, is that a private firm has developed a business of providing market news. The success of their business is evidence of the need for the news. However, providing reports about what is essentially a private market is difficult and no one, including often the reporter, knows how representative the report is.

While we have learned to accept some inaccuracy from our weather forecasts, producers are less understanding about market reports. Often the dissatisfaction is greatest in periods of low or volatile prices. In those periods producers wonder why there is no alternative to the current system of learning the market price.

In the case of eggs, the difficulty of discovering the "true" prices promoted the formation of Egg Clearinghouse, Inc. (ECI) in 1971. ECI provides a public forum for cash trading in eggs. Daily trading in ECI is intended to help the industry discover what eggs of a known quality are worth. Urner Barry gets its information from a number of sources, including ECI trading activity and telephone surveys of the industry.

Egg producers still worry that prices based on the Urner Barry quotes may understate the true value of their eggs. The industry's strong interest motivated a Penn State study to find out whether or not producers should be concerned. Daily Urner Barry price quotes and daily average ECI trading prices from 1994 and 1995 were collected at the same market level: class 1 white gradeable nest run.

Were the Urner Barry quotes lower, on average, than the ECI prices? The answer was "no." Over the course of two years, the average ECI price was 48.9 cents per dozen and the average Urner Barry quote was 49.2 cents per dozen. ECI prices were just slightly more variable than the Urner Barry quotes.

Did Urner Barry respond late to movements in ECI trading? ECI was set up to be the place where the marginal, price-making trades could occur, so ECI might be expected to be a leading indicator of Urner Barry. Producers want the timing of changes in the Urner Barry quote to be as close as possible to changes in the true market value, though. As it turned out, neither ECI nor Urner Barry alone were leading indicators. Instead, there was feedback between the two.

Further investigation revealed that ECI was a leading indicator of Urner Barry when prices were rising, but not when prices were falling. ECI trading volume also thinned out during downswings. Producers had an incentive to trade through private brokers during downswings, rather than trading in full view of Urner Barry reporters. As ECI trading fell, strategic trading behavior was more likely to interfere with ECI's function as a price discovery mechanism.

So what did the study tell us? It suggests that Urner Barry is not persistently understating the market value of eggs and depriving producers of revenue. It suggests the ECI is a necessary and effective part of the price discovery process, but it is not immune to distortion by strategic trading.

When the study's results are put in historical context, they paint a picture of a maturing, increasingly successful price discovery mechanism in the egg industry. A similar study used data from 1977-1978, and found ECI prices leading the Urner Barry quote by one and a half weeks. Seventeen years later, the leads were down to only about three days. Another study used data from 1979-1982, a period of very thin trading on ECI, and reported the disturbing result that Urner Barry was leading ECI.

Apparently, trading volume has a large influence on ECI's effectiveness. Today, ECI is regularly breaking its monthly trading volume records, suggesting that the egg industry may be out of the woods in its effort to develop an accurate, sensitive price discovery mechanism. Whether it be Urner Barry or ECI, egg prices apparently reflect market conditions pretty well. Prices rise and fall with supply and demand, and surpluses or shortages are rare.

Llama And Alpaca Expo Set

This event is designed to introduce the public to the rewarding "llama lifestyle." There will be two days to educate the public on the many practical and pleasurable activities the breeders share with llamas and alpacas. There will be numerous demonstrations including spinning and felting of camelid fibers and activities showcasing the versatile and amiable nature of these animals. Tents will house farm exhibits, llamas, demonstrations, seminars, food, gourmet coffees, and vendors participating in this event.

If you've never personally met a llama or alpaca, love fiber arts, or have considered raising alternative livestock on small acreages, you won't want to miss this event. It is free to the public and makes a great family outing. The event is open to the public from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. daily.

Rural-Urban Rift Overblown, Boehlert Says

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — U.S. Rep. Sherwood Boehlert (R-NY) recently told farmers attending the annual convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation in Nashville that though "there are real differences between urban and rural interests (in Congress) — and especially their political ramifications — have been greatly exaggerated."

He added, "I have no doubt that we can develop common-sense, effective solutions that help all Americans."

Boehlert said, "Urban legislators love to gripe about the supposedly inflated food prices and taxes they pay because of agricultural programs. But those complaints haven't influenced policy very much."

The central New York congressman cited some of the reasons.

"First, their arguments don't hold much water. Americans pay less of their income for food than any other people in the world, and our agricultural policies have created a food supply of unparalleled stability.

Second, urban legislators don't spend much time on farm issues, and farm policies are too complex to debate effectively without acquiring at least a semblance of expertise."

Looking at the upcoming session of Congress, Boehlert gave his analysis of how the things will shake out.

"The urban bloc is in many ways smaller and less united than is commonly believed. Take my home state of New York, one of the most urban in the nation. At least half of New York's 31 members of Congress represent districts with significant agricuture. And agriculture is the single largest industry in the state."

He exclaimed, "To put it bluntly, we can't afford to thumb our noses at other agricultural interests."

Speaking about the Senate, the New York Congressman said, "Of course, in the Senate, urbanites have even less control. Nearly every state has significant rural constituencies. So it's wrong to set up a 'them vs. us' mentality."

Discussing about the role of urban lawmakers in purely agricultural issues, such as last year's farm bill, Boehlert stated, "Legislators from primarily urban and suburban areas can create problems for farm interests, especially localized ones, such as sugar and peanut growers . . ." He added, "But those urban coalitions are less important than the divisions within the farm community itself."

Boehlert offered his advice to farmers regarding agricultural legislation. "Make sure every legislator who represents farmers hears from them — often, not just in times of crisis — and make sure the farm community is as organized and united as possible. Like all groups, farmers can be their own worst enemies."

On the subject of environmental protection and conservation issues approved last year, Boehlert said, "They reflect an emerging consensue inside government and outside about the kind of reform we need to protect the environment."

He said, "We need strict environmental standards, but we don't have to give marching orders from Washington on how to meet those standards. The government ought to be providing assistance and incentives, not consuming time and energy on needless red tape and excessive enforcement."

Boehlert said, "The watchword of that consensus is 'felxibility'," and it "applies with equal force to urban and rural environmental problems."

Boehlert went on to cite two areas where he and the Farm Bureau pushed for flexibility in protecting the environment by helping farmers protect the land and the water — namely, the conservation provisions of the 1996 Farm Bill and the New York City Watershed Agreement. The American Farm Bureau Convention ran from January 5-9, and was attended by about 8,000 farmers from all across the country.

TIPS FOR SEEDSTOCK PRODUCERS

The opportunity to attend the West Virginia Marketing Alliance Workshop and Symposia in February allowed me access to some of the country's top purebred beef breeders who are building alliances with their bull customers, feedlots, and packing plants. Their obvious goal is to provide the consumer with a uniform, consistent, quality beef product while supporting each other in the process.

Sharing their thoughts and ideas were Mark Gardiner of Ashland, Kan.; Galen Fink of Manhattan, Kan.; Dave Nichols from Bridgewater, Iowa; and James Bennett of Red House, Va. Some forward-thinking ideas I gleaned from their presentations follow:

•Make fertility your #1 selection criteria.

•Consider 100 percent AI breeding for rapid progress.

•Utilize embryo technology if it is profitable.

•Use only high accuracy sires that have at least 100 daughters in production.

•Select bulls on economic important traits, considering EPDs for low birthweight, but fast growth to slaughter; above breed average for marbling and ribeye; and selection against fat and mature sire.

•Pursue the collection of carcass data from bulls that are a product of your program.

•Build partnerships with your customers — invite them to consign to your sale, share ownership of feeder cattle, give them "bull buying" credits when they provide you with carcass data.

Livestock Trucking Guidelines

For anyone involved in transporting livestock, your responsiblities most definitely include:

•Safe pick-up and delivery of livestock.

•Protection of the livestock producer's investment.

•Assurance of the animal's welfare.

These were the key points of my recent presentation to a large group of livestock truckers at an event sponsored by the New Holland Sales Stables. Livestock truckers play a major role in quality assurance programs conducted by our major livestock industries. The proper movement of animals during each production stage and to their endpoint is critical in providing packers, retailers, and consumers a quality, wholesome product.

The Livestock Conservation Institute reports that approximately 80,000 hogs annually leave the farm but never reach market. After producers have invested in feed, buildings, medications, equipment and months of care, they perish on the way to market. Many of them could be saved by care in loading, attention to the temperature, a better ride, or more careful handling. Cattle losses during transit are not as great, but more care could reduce shrinkage and help reduce stress related losses. Bruising causes great trim loss for meat packers and stressed livestock can result in dark cutting beef and PSE (Pale, Soft, Exudative) pork.

If you haul livestock, you must consider the effects of hot and cold weather, how animals are handled while loading and unloading, and how careful you drive the truck. Respecting a producer's biosecurity efforts is essential and handling "downed" animals appropriately is important. If you transport livestock it would serve you well to obtain a copy of the Livestock Trucking Guide available from the Livestock Conservation Institute, 1910 Lyda Drive, Bowling Green, KY 42104-5809. LCI can be reached by telephone at (502) 782-9798.

Medication Handling

During Level III recertification of pork producers in their national pork quality assurance program, I often focus on one of ten critical control points.

Most recently, at a swine producer meeting, I chose medication handling and storage as the critical area for review. The following points are important for producers of all livestock when it comes to medication procedures.

Of course, the goal of proper handling and storage is to help maintain a medication's effectiveness and help you efficiently manage your medical supplies.

•Date each medication bottle when received and follow the label directions for proper storage.

•Record all newly obtained drugs on an inventory control sheet.

•Keep the oldest medications in the front of the refrigeration or storage cabinet so they get used first.

•When transporting medications, use a styrofoam cooler with a lid for protection against sunlight and temperature extremes.

Remember that medications become ineffective over time. Once a drug is removed from a bottle, its efficacy begins to decline. The expiration date on an unopened bottle becomes even shorter.

Penn State Facility Recognized For Dairy Reference Manual

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Fourteen scholars and researchers in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences have been recognized by the American Society of Agricultural Engineers (ASAE) for the third edition of "The Dairy Reference Manual."

The manual earned a Blue Ribbon Award in ASAE's 1996 Educational Aids Competition. About 100 entries were displayed and judged at the ASAE Annual Meeting. The manual was among 20 entries to receive recognition.

"The Dairy Reference Manual," a compendium of information about all facets of dairy production, is designed to allow quick access to facts about such topics as ration balancing, designing a ventilation system for a freestall barn, and identifying the causes of mastitis. It is the second revision of the original "Penn State Dairy Reference Manual," first published in 1966 and used around the world.

Penn State faculty and staff who contributed to the manual included Dr. Richard Adams, professor emeritus of dairy science; Dr. John Comerford, associate professor of animal science; Dr. Stephen Ford, associate professor of agricultural economics; Dr. Robert Graves, professor of agricultural engineering; Dr. William Heald, professor of dairy science; Dr. Jud Heinrichs, professor of dairy science; Dr. William Henning, associate professor of animal science; Dr. Lawrence Hutchinson, professor of veterinary science; Virginia Ishler, program assistant in dairy and animal science; Dr. Michael O'Connor, professor of dairy science; Dr. Lawrence Specht, professor emeritus of dairy science; Dr. Stephen Spencer, professor emeritus of dairy science; Dr. Gabriella Varga, professor of animal science; and Dr. Robert Yonkers, assistant professor of agricultural economics.

The American Society of Agricultural Engineers presents the Educational Aids Blue Ribbon Awards each year in recognition of outstanding effort and achievement in the development of noteworthy educational aids. The entries are judged by the ASAE Extension Committee.

The competition encourages agricultural engineers in industry and public service to strive for excellence in extension activities through the interchange of ideas on successful methods and techniques. It also promotes excellence in those aids which represent agricultural engineering and through the exchange of ideas and individual recognition, contributes to overall improvement in the use of educational aids.

Published by the Northeast Regional Agricultural Engineering Service, the 293-page, wire-bound Dairy Reference Manual contains 13 chapters, three appendices, 240 tables and 88 illustrations.

The manual is used by extension agents, consultants and farm planners, veterinarians, engineers, manufacturers, salespeople, and others who need a comprehensive, easy-to-use desk reference about dairy farming.

The Dairy Reference Manual, publication number NRAES-63, is available for $40 from the Publications Distribution Center, Penn State College of Agricultural Sciences, 112 Agricultural Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802.

Grange Establishes Scholarship Foundation

The Pennsylvania State Grange announces the formation of a foundation to encourage charitable, scientific and educational activities within the organization.

The foundation will initially oversee two new programs: the PA State Grange Scholarship Fund and the Deaf Interpreter Scholarship Fund.

The two programs join in the Santee Student Loan Fund and Leonard Rhone Scholarship Fund, which have been in existence for many years, and administered by the PA State Grange.

Bill Steel, State Grange Master, said the foundation is authorized to perform numerous functions.

"A primary function of the foundation permits individual members to invest in the future of younger Grange members by making charitable contributions," Steel said. "The foundation will also support rural development programs, charitable activities for the underprivileged, handicapped and poor and meet the needs of the agricultural community."

Although scholarship guidelines have not been formally adopted, Steel said many Grange members stand to benefit.

"A contribution to the foundation is a contribution in mankind," Steel said. "The benefits will be tangible as well as intangible."

Interest earned from contributions made by individuals, Granges and other foundations will provide scholarships for Grange members attending institutions of higher learning. Contributions to the deaf interpreter fund will be used to grant scholarships to individuals enrolled in credible programs leading to certification as a qualified deaf interpreter.

However, Grange and non-Grange members who wish to apply for the Santee Student Loan or Leonard Rhone Scholarship funds should call the state office to obtain the proper applications. Deadline for these programs is May 1.

Any non-member who would like to obtain more information about the Grange and its scholarship programs, may write to: Pennsylvania State Grange, 1604 N. Second St., Harrisburg, PA 17102 or by calling 1-800-552-3865.

The Pennsylvania State Grange is an agricultural, rural and community service organization dedicated to improving the lives of rural Pennsylvanians. The Grange, with over 31,000 members in 66 counties, will celebrate its 125th annual convention this fall in Reading.

Forage Scores High In Feed Tests

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — University research on a new line of forages shows dramatic increases in milk production compared to normal corn silage. Based on the trials, farmers could boost net returns by more than $150 per cow per lactation.

FullTime™ forage, developed by Cargill Hybrid Seeds plant breeders, boosted production by 5.5 pounds of fat-corrected milk per cow per day in a Michigan State University (MSU) trial, compared to its conventional counterpart.

The feeding tests, supervised by MSU dairy nutritionist Dr. Mike Allen, show an increase in fiber digestibility and an increase in dry-matter intake. Cows fed silage made from FullTime forage actually consumed 8 percent more dry matter, which contributed to the increased milk production. Body condition scores also improved during the feeding trials, an indicator of improved herd health.

Assuming a milk price of $14 per hundredweight (cwt), the MSU results translate to an increase in net income of $150 per cow per 305-day lactation (see table).

Performance of Cows Fed FullTime™ Forage

In the MSU study 32 cows were fed silage from a conventional hybrid and silage made from a FullTime forage in a crossover design for 56 days.

FullTime™ forage is also being tested this fall and early winter in 90-day feeding trials at 157 dairies in 11 states, according to Dr. John Foley, technology deployment manager in Cargill's Animal Nutrition Division.

The cooperators will work closely with Cargill nutritionists and territory managers as well as Michigan State University nutritionists to analyze the results. Several 10-day feedbunk trials at about 30 farms also are under way. First feedbunk test results will be available in December; the on-farm tests will be analyzed by early 1997.

"Our research shows that a balanced nutritional program is important to achieve maximum milk production. That's why our Animal Nutrition and Cargill Hybrid Seeds representatives work closely together with dairy producers who feed FullTime forage," said Foley.

FullTime forage hybrids in maturity ratings of 100, 110 and 118 days will be available for 1997. Breeding work on FullTime forage began in 1991 when Cargill plant breeders began their first genetic enhancement of corn germplasm by incorporating a low lignin gene. The resulting plant contains up to 40 percent less indigestible lignin than its conventional counterpart and provides effective fiber in a highly digestible form.

Development of FullTime forage is part of a broader forage quality program begun by Cargill in 1987 to screen and develop corn hybrids that produce superior forage yield and enhanced feed value.

Dr. Allen believes the low-lignin corn silage digests and passes from the rumen more rapidly, allowing greater feed intake and resulting in greater milk production.

FarmPLANS Workshop March 17

MILTON (Northumberland Co.) — All agricultural producers are invited to participate in the FarmPLANS workshop, Monday, March 17, here at the All American Restaurant.

Breeze Master

90 Cow Tie Stall Barn—Atglen, PA

Lapp's Barn Equipment can install a high-performance/high efficiency tunnel ventilation system in your barn. A tunnel ventilation system will give you an even air flow throughout your barn of 2-5 mph. This gives you the advantage of better controlling temperature to give your cows more comfort which means more milk!! Also, a tunnel ventilation system eliminates circulating fans, provides summer and winter ventilation and controls fly problems! An optional unit can even automate your ventilation so you will never even have to worry about it when you're not there, so you can concentrate on other things!

At Lapp's, we sell high quality ventilation systems manufactured by Acme Engineering, Acme products feature such things as

- Galvanized Construction
- Wide Cambered Propeller
- Rivited Blades
- Unique Captured Bearings
- Vertical Support Frame
- Screens Pre-cut
- Totally Enclosed Motors
- Optional Discharge Diffuser Cone
- Optional Belt Tightener

Cut stall clean-out time by 50% with a Millcreek Compact Spreader.

"The spreading efficiency sure outweighs the price. This is a wonderful machine. I couldn't be more pleased."
EARL SINKS - Brock, Texas

Say "Good-Bye" to back-breaking manure handling and cut stall clean-out time in half. Hook an affordable Millcreek Compact Spreader to your 10 hp garden tractor, take it right to the stall for easy loading. No more wheelbarrow.

Millcreek Spreaders last and last

Since spreaders are our specialty, we put more into each one. For example our 20-year guaranteed floor will never rust or rot. Positive chain drive provides excellent spreading action. And tough steel construction holds up to rugged farm use. Seven sizes, for 1-horse barns to 50-horse stables. PTO and ground drive models available.

PURINA PROFILE

Oldest Purina Dealership In Maryland

Since 1907, the H.C. Summers, Inc. Purina dealership has been serving farmers around the town of Jefferson in Maryland. Today, Mike, Tom, and Mark represent the fourth generation of the family to run the business with the fifth generation in the wings. They have the oldest Purina dealership in the state of Maryland.

"We are a family owned business that treats customers the way we would want to be treated," Tom said. "Grandfather made the decision back in 1920 to become a Purina dealer and everyone in the family has always believed this was the right decision.

"Purina stands behind everything they sell and the service they provide is second to none. This philosophy fits right in with the way our family wants to do business."

The Summers brothers have a full-time nutrition consultant on the road for dairy and horse customers. Delivery is in both bulk and bags and as time progresses, the walk-in trade for the pet and small farm items has increased too. The service area is based in Frederick County with sales extending into Montgomery and Washington Counties.

The Summers brothers appreciate their customers as individuals and thank them for their patronage. They invite you to call them or stop in to see if they can help you with your livestock feeding needs.
